Military Possibilities in the Balkans

THE past week the Turks have issued an ultimatum to the European powers with respect to warships leaving Smyrna harbor. Reports from a number of quarters again indicate Russia's willingness actively to support Turkey, should war ensue. The statement issued by Moscow, from time to time, that war is the last thing contemplated, coupled with troop movements, recalls the fact that the Moscow government has made it a standard practice most strongly to protest its peaceful intention when contemplating hostilities. A dispatch from Jugoslavia states that in answer to an inquiry from Greece the Jugo-Slavs will not enter a conflict, unless their territory is invaded. These items serve to emphasize two facts; one, that the Balkans still retain a pivotal position with respect to any European conflict; the other, that the orientation of the various powers with respect to Balkan and Near Eastern questions has been entirely changed by the fact that whereas, in the past, the various powers used Turkey as against Russia, or vice versa, under present circumstances Russia and Turkey are in general acting together as against the other powers.

Prior to Germany's appearance on the scene as a world power, with its consequent forcing of the century-old enemies, France and England, into each other's arms; England's compromises in Central Asia with Russia, until then considered the greatest danger to the British Empire; and the unnatural alliance of Republican France with Czarist Russia, the international situation of Europe was primarily governed by Great Britain's successful attempts to keep Russia as far away as possible from the Mediterranean and both the land and sea routes to India. During all this period the British backed the Turks as against the Russians and the ambitions of Russia or any of her protégés in the Balkans. The various Balkan peoples fought on whichever side of any dispute they conceived to be best from the point of view of their racial ambitions and jealousies.

With Poland in the north, a protégé of France, blocking the road of Russia to the West, and Greece in the south, a protégé of England, on Turkey's route westward, the Balkan states have the same opportunity as before to choose sides in accordance with the opportunity presented to further their own interests.

Bulgaria, shorn of her very efficient army and of considerable territory as the result of the war, is eager to act.

Jugoslavia, always poor, and economically exhausted as the result of years of fighting, is anxious for peace.

Roumania, greatly increased in size as the result of the war, surrounded by Russia, Bulgaria and Hungary—all ancient enemies and all countries from which she has got territory as a result of the war—is in a precarious position and undoubtedly will go to considerable extent to avoid war.

Hungary, always warlike, is in the same position as Bulgaria, smarting under the elimination of her army and the loss of territory. She has been for some time, and is to-day, a constant source of trouble to her neighbors.

Czecho-Slovakia, while almost untouched by the war, has her own problems of uniting into one people four races speaking four different languages. There can be no doubt that she will only fight as a last extremity.

Austria is so completely powerless in every way that she does not enter into the situation.

Army and Navy Journal Poll Shows Sentiment Is for National Defense

IN response to the poll taken by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL to determine the sentiment in Congress on national defense in general and in regard to items in the Army Appropriation bill having to do with the Organized Reserves, summer training, etc., practically every member of the House made an individual reply.

The sentiment of the majority is that national defense is more important than temporary economy, and that adequate provision should be made for training all Reserve forces. In addition to the interviews printed below, continued from last week, thirty-two members of the House have expressed themselves in favor of increases for the Reserve forces, thirty-four were non-committal and three were against any increase in Army appropriations.

Mr. Denison, Republican, Illinois.—I am in favor of the military training as provided for in the National Defense act, but don't know how much money is needed to carry it on. I shall have to look into the matter before deciding whether I favor the budget item or the bill appropriation.

Mr. Vaile, Republican, Colorado.—I am in favor of the budget allowance at least for this training. I am for the increase over the Anthony bill provision. I am eternally against these idealist pacifists and have always voted against the Anthony little appropriations in the House.

Mr. Luhring, Republican, Indiana.—That matter will come back to the House. I will have to look into it before I can give an intelligent opinion as to which I would favor, the bill or the budget.

Mr. Greene, Republican, Vermont.—I am for these training agencies on general principles and I am for as liberal and general appropriation for them as is practical to keep in economy.

Mr. Dominick, Democrat, South Carolina.—I don't know whether I should support the budget estimate for this item or not until it comes before the House and has been discussed.

Mr. Linthicum, Democrat, Maryland.—I am in favor of carrying out the National Defense act. I believe the training in these camps and in the schools is worth more than it ever costs if we never have another war, and I hope we will never have another. It improves the standard and morals of our young men and is money well spent in defense. I am for the increase as asked by the budget.

Mr. Perkins, Republican, New Jersey.—Yes, I am for the training camps. I am with Anthony, but voted that way in the House.

Mr. Hull, Republican, Iowa.—I am in favor of the increased amount for the training camps and training in the colleges. I think we ought to keep up that kind of training to keep up the national defense. It is the cheapest preparedness we could possibly spend money on.

Mr. Langley, Republican, Kentucky.—I would be inclined to support the committee rather than the budget on this. We committee fellows hang together. I am heartily in favor of the training camps.

Mr. Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina.—I consider every proposition on its merits, regardless of what the budget recommends and shall do this likewise when it comes before the House. I can't say how I will vote on it.

Mr. Kline, Republican, New York.—I am for the budget. I shall support the increase for training when it comes before the House.

Mr. Glynn, Republican, Connecticut.—I haven't gone into this item yet. I am for an adequate appropriation for the training camps and the training in schools, but could not tell until I investigated it whether this change would be justifiable. If the Senate amends the bill I should be glad then to look into it. Whatever is necessary for this phase of the military the House should vote it and not cut the necessary appropriation.

Mr. Cole, Republican, Iowa.—I am in favor of as liberal an appropriation as possible for the officers' training camps, the summer training camps and military training in the schools and colleges, and I would be in favor of any increase in these appropriations the Senate may see fit to add. I am in favor of these training agencies because I consider them the best for the national defense.

Mr. Slemp, Republican, Virginia.—I am in favor of any kind of educational help for both the officers and the civilian under our appropriation and I would be very liberal about the appropriation.

Mr. Codd, Republican, Michigan.—I have not gone through that sufficiently to speak on it generally stating my views. I would be for anything that would tend to increase the efficiency of the Army and Navy.

Mr. Moore, Republican, Illinois.—I am very strong for the training camps. I would be for the budget as against the House bill on this item.

Mr. Bland, Republican, Indiana.—I don't know anything about it. I would not know until I went over it whether I am for the budget recommendation or against it. I doubt whether I would be for an increase in the amount.

Mr. Latham, Democrat, Texas.—I will listen to the discussion on the floor on the bill when it comes back. I have not given it close attention yet as I am not on that committee. I have an open mind and will be interested in the discussion.

Mr. Connally, Democrat, Texas.—As a rule, I believe in encouraging those activities. I have not had time to study the amendments, but I don't see why we should disregard the budget there. If we have any money to spend on the Army we ought to take care of these training agencies.

Mr. Fairchild, Republican, New York.—I haven't seen the amended bill. I am very much in favor of military training in the schools and colleges. It is the alternative of militarism. If we are to be always fully prepared, as we should be, for any emergency every man who favors a small Army should, logically, favor military instruction in the schools. I am for the maximum recommendation.

Mr. Robison, Republican, Kentucky.—I haven't looked into that with care yet. I am inclined to be liberal for those agencies but can not say how I will vote on the amendment.

Mr. Black, Democrat, Texas.—I will be glad to get the hearings and study that section of the bill. I am inclined to be liberal with that agency and have had some communications about it since the bill passed the House. I will see what the hearings have. If it looks like the increase is justifiable I am for it. I am anxious to make any reasonable expenditure to keep up the officers part of the unit.

Mr. Rocce, Republican, Tennessee.—I will have to look that up and see what the increase is. As a general rule, I am for those things and will probably be for the increase.

Mr. Miller, Republican, Washington.—I am in favor of the increase and will vote to sustain it in the House.

Mr. Strong, Republican, Pennsylvania.—I have been away sick, but I am in favor of ample support for these training operations. I think we should support them. I will be inclined to favor the amendment.

Mr. Fish, Republican, New York.—I am in favor of the increase. I don't know what the figures in the increase are, but I do not think the House went far enough and I will be glad to support any increase the Senate makes. In my mind, we should have training camps so that the officers could obtain two weeks' training at Government expense. This system of training officers and also of instructing young civilians in military affairs is the least expensive form of national defense yet devised, and at the same time, highly efficient, owing to the potential force of manpower available in time of war. The continuance of this policy of training and keeping in training Reserve officers will insure the speedy mobilization of our manpower in any emergency.

Mr. McCormick, Republican, Montana.—I am in favor of the training camps. The Senate ought to have given the increase. The department has not been getting enough to conduct the training decently, the boys told me who went down to the camps last year. I think that if we are going to train them we ought to train them right.

Mr. Barbour, Republican, California.—I am inclined to be for the training camps. I will give the matter careful consideration if it comes back to the House.

Mr. Larson, Republican, Minnesota.—The House is not going to quibble on a mere $300,000 for these training activities, are they? I think they should give this training to the boys to make them physically fit for duty if they are called upon.

Mr. Chalmers, Republican, Ohio.—I think that I should favor an appropriation that would take care of the National Guard sufficiently to train all who might apply for training at the camps and that, I believe, would require about $300,000 more than was given. I think this is the most economical of the expenditures made by Congress.

What the Non-Com. Bill Will Accomplish

IN response to inquiries from Congress as to the effect of the passage of the bill (S. 4037) to stop demotion among non-commissioned officers the War Department has prepared a short statement. In Paragraph 2 it should be borne in mind that the comparison is made with the National Defense act. In this paragraph the actual strength is not referred to. The following is the text of the statement:

Non-Com. Officers of the Senior Grades
	1st Gr.	2d Gr.	3d Gr.	Total
Authorized by existing law	750	2,250	2,500	5,500
Recommended in S. 4037	992	2,582	4,229	7,803
Actual strength Dec. 31, 1922	1,194	2,955	2,557	6,706

Notes

1. S. 4037 will authorize 2,303 more non-commissioned officers in grades 1, 2 and 3 than now authorized.
2. It will produce a corresponding decrease in grades 4, 5, 6 and 7. No increase in the total authorized strength of the Army is provided.
3. The strength report of Dec. 31, 1922, shows the Army had an excess of 444, 705 and 57 in the 1st, 2d and 3d grades respectively over the numbers now authorized by law (compare lines 1 and 3 of table).
4. The bill asks for a total increase of 1,097 in grades 1, 2 and 3 over the actual strength in these grades on Dec. 31, 1922, but a comparison of lines 2 and 3 in table shows that many demotions from grades 1 and 2 into grade 3 will have to be made even after the passage of the bill.
5. The main reason for the requested increase in grade 3 (lines 1 and 2 of table) is because men heretofore assigned to the National Guard, the Organized Reserves and to Reserve Officers' Training Corps, holding grades 4 and 5, have found it impracticable to live in civilian communities on the pay provided for those lower grades.
6. The cost of the organization provided for in S. 4037 over that provided in existing law will be about $1,500,000 per year, but the actual strength now in the first three grades is greater than authorized, therefore the increase of cost will be materially less than stated.
7. The measure has the approval not only of the National Guard, the Organized Reserves, all colleges maintaining units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, but also all the combat and administrative branches of the Regular establishment.

Japan's Attitude on Fortifications

IN the February number of the Atlantic Monthly, Hector C. Bywater exposes some interesting facts relating to the fortification of the Bonin Islands during the sessions of the Washington Conference, which, if true, convict the Japanese of something very akin to chicanery. The incident is all the more remarkable when we consider the scrupulousness with which the United States refrained from adding to the defenses of Guam, Manila and Samoa, during the same period of negotiation.

According to Mr. Bywater, when it became known in Tokyo, in the spring of 1921, that our Government was planning a conference for the reduction of naval armament, the Japanese authorities decided to speed up the completion of their island forts, with the object of strengthening their strategic position before the Conference met.

Work Carried on Secretly

FROM May, 1921, "the work at the Bonins went on with feverish energy. A large fleet of steamers was chartered to convey thither the thousands of laborers and the vast quantities of material needed to complete the task. So great was the demand for cement, that a temporary shortage of this material ensued. Throughout the summer and autumn building operations went on night and day, and during this period the Bonin Islands were under a military administration which maintained a strict surveillance over visiting foreign ships. The Japanese press was also forbidden to publish any mention of what was in progress at the islands. By December the last of the batteries had been constructed and armed with heavy long range guns, the barracks, munition depots, aerodrome and radio station had been constructed."

Meanwhile the Conference had assembled in November, and the Japanese delegation had taken the first opportunity to make clear that a condition of their agreement regarding limitation of tonnage would be a status quo agreement as to fortification and facilities of insular Pacific naval bases. They made no mention, however, of the fact that Japan was just completing, secretly, some very strong fortifications at Bonin, well knowing that corresponding American fortifications were exceedingly backward.

During the period that these negotiations were in progress, and while the Japanese fortifications were progressing so feverishly, the Americans actually suspended preparations that had been going forward in a normal routine way. Mining and other material en route to Guam and Samoa was stopped and turned back.

Contrast in Ethics

THE contrast in ethics is all the more striking because of the assumptions which the American delegates to the conference have made respecting a supposed "new state of mind," which they claim justifies a sacrifice involving $700,000,000 if America is to maintain a 5-5-3 ratio of naval strength. In their official report of the conference our delegates state that the negotiations leading up to the treaties were "a process of attaining" a new state of mind among the several negotiating powers. Surely the Japanese process will scarcely measure up to the supposed standard which is deemed to justify our sacrifices.

THE THREE "AGES" OF SHOEMAKING

For centuries and centuries the method of making footwear did not vary. A mural painting discovered in the ruins of ancient Thebes shows Egyptian sandal-makers at work after the manner of the early New England cobblers. Until a few generations ago boots and shoes were made entirely by hand, and wholly by the individual craftsman. This was the first "age" of shoemaking.

In the Eighteenth Century small domestic shoe-shops arose, and groups of men and women, in shops and homes, made the footwear of the people, the work being more or less divided, but all still done by hand. This was the second "age".

About the middle of the Nineteenth Century the factory system developed and the introduction of shoe machinery began, until to-day in no field of manufacture has greater progress been made or more efficiency been attained through machinery. This is the third "age".

There is a machine now available for practically every process in the making of shoes. And, by the way, there are one hundred and forty different operations in the making of a Goodyear Welt Shoe, universally recognized as without a peer in those qualities which make a shoe desirable,—comfort, durability, appearance.

The Bursum Bill

AFTER months of effort what is commonly known as the Bursum bill has finally been put in proper shape through the submission by Capt. Royal Johnson of the House of Representatives of a bill which will create the necessary retired list within the Veterans' Bureau.

The purpose of the Bursum bill and Johnson's bill is to give the emergency officer, permanently injured during the war, the same pay as a Regular officer, similarly injured and retired as a consequence.

The general principle of taking care of both classes of officers in the same manner, as far as practical results are concerned, cannot be considered other than just, and has not been resisted by the Regular Army.

The Secretary of War, other members of the War Department interested, and the various members of the House Military Affairs Committee who kept the bill from being reported, have insisted that they in no way opposed the general principle of recompensing in exactly the same manner both the Regular officers and the Emergency officers permanently injured as the result of the war.

They did oppose, however, placing these officers on the retired list of the active or Regular Army, maintaining that this retired list is part of the permanent establishment, operating in peace as well as in war, and is part of the virtual contract which the Government makes with a Regular officer when he enters the Service. In other words, that this retired list is part of the compensation of a Regular officer, regardless of war, and not something which could be considered as a war measure or as resulting from war.

Equal Treatment for Disabled

AT the same time they have maintained that they had no objections to and did favor a separate retired list for the Emergency officers carried by the Veterans' Bureau.

In other words, they have emphasized the fact that two principles are at stake:

1. Equal treatment of all officers injured as the result of the war, regardless of what commission they held; and
2. Keeping out of the War Department appropriations in peace time all matters not having to do with the maintenance of the peace establishment.

The Veterans' Bureau is established and maintained for the purpose of taking care of the veterans of the World War, and the appropriations supporting it are made for this purpose. All costs resulting from the care of veterans of the last war not part of the permanent establishment are justly chargeable to this bureau, and nowhere else.

Every time an Army Appropriation bill comes before the Congress of the United States important items necessary for the maintenance of the permanent forces are passed over, cut down or eliminated because the public as a whole, and even too many members of Congress, do not distinguish between the military features of the bill pure and simple and other features, such as rivers and harbors improvement, not justly chargeable to the military establishment.

The pacifists and similar individuals throughout the country continually fighting to abolish our national defense inevitably take the total War and Navy Department appropriations as the basis of their arguments, never being fair enough to eliminate from this total the immense sums annually appropriated which have nothing to do with our military and naval establishments as such.

Time for United Action

ONE or two of the friends of the Bursum bill working for its passage in Washington, through their inclination to use strong-arm methods as against the Army, have done more to stir up objection to the bill as it was originally presented than have some of the active enemies of the measure. Now that the fact has been finally recognized that the passage of the bill depends upon two essential principles, and not on one alone, undoubtedly the new measure will obtain that full support which, up to the present, it has lacked.

The acknowledgment by the supporters of this measure that justice to the Emergency officer is not affected by having him on a retired list handled by the Veterans' Bureau furnishes the opportunity for all to make every effort to insure that this bill be passed and justice be done the Emergency officer crippled as the result of the war.

Pacifists Always Unfair

THERE is one fact of which the believers in adequate national defense may always be sure—that the pacifists, when defeated in one direction, will inevitably be perniciously active, through their paid secretaries, in some other.

One of the items of the Army Appropriation bill which has caused the most discussion is that carrying less than half a million dollars for the maintenance of the divisional, and, ultimately, brigade and regimental, headquarters of the Organized Reserves throughout the country.

Mr. Anthony's committee quietly eliminated this item, thus abolishing twenty-seven Reserve Infantry division and six Reserve Cavalry division headquarters already in existence, and preventing the extension of this system to the brigades and regiments. The Senate restored the item. The Senate and House conferees, according to reports, are having more of a struggle on this point than on any other on which they disagree.

It now develops that a very large part of the objection to these headquarters has been quietly brought about by pacifist activities. They have recognized the fact that these headquarters lead to the stationing of Regular Army officers and non-commissioned officers all over the country in the midst of the civilian population. They have recognized what many people in the Army and Navy, apparently, do not yet grasp, that most of the misunderstanding of the people of the United States with respect to national defense is due to ignorance of the facts. They have grasped the fact that once Regular Army officers and enlisted men live and freely mix with civilians, the civilian will discover that these Regulars are American citizens like himself, with the same desires and ideals, and the Regulars will discover that the civilian is only apparently indifferent to national defense; that, as a matter of fact, he is eager to hear about it, if someone acquainted with the facts will come and tell him. They have realized that as a consequence of this, Regular Army officers are being asked to address chambers of commerce luncheons, Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs' luncheons, and all sorts of other functions throughout the country, which the average American is accustomed to attend, and at which he acquires his knowledge on most of the subjects which his daily activities do not allow him the time to become acquainted with otherwise.

As a consequence, they have been complaining that these headquarters are the means of putting out propaganda to the American people with respect to national defense.

There is no better example of the utter unfairness of the pacifist element. There is no better example of their moral cowardice. There is no better example of the utter lack of the true American principle of fair play. There is no better example of their minds being of the kind which sought in past centuries through unfair means to inflict religious ideas of one kind or another upon unwilling peoples.

The pacifists flood this country with propaganda; with speakers all talking against national defense; all attempting to prove that our enemies who wish to disarm us are right; and that the loyal citizen who wishes to preserve our constitution, by force of arms if necessary, is wrong. Any interference with their propaganda immediately raises a most terrible outcry that they are being persecuted and denied the rights guaranteed a citizen under the constitution.

They agree, and are allowed to praise in accordance with their consciences, in some cases, their fears in many others, and their necessity to earn a living in a few, a policy which all history, and above all our own, shows to be dangerous to our national existence, and to have again and again led to enormous and unnecessary waste of money and enormous and unnecessary waste of human life.

This attempt to abolish at one stroke the framework of what in the next war will be what was our National Army of the last war, and at the same time to prevent the average citizen of the United States from hearing the truth with respect to national defense, is the best recent example of the utter unfairness of the pacifist and his unwillingness to take any means to attain his end.

Edison and the Navy

IT is difficult to believe in the accuracy of many purported quotations from Mr. Edison that have appeared in the daily press during the last few days with reference to rejection of inventions submitted by him to the Navy and the Army during the war. It is true that few of Mr. Edison's suggestions were adopted. But this was due to a variety of causes which bore no relation to such reasons as "Navy officers seem to resent ideas for the betterment of the Navy rather than to welcome them."

The services of Mr. Edison were not utilized by the Government until within three months of the declaration of war. In the great majority of cases, that is too late for inventions to have much effect upon military and naval operations which last but a year and a half. Von Moltke's definition of war, "making the best of the means at hand," illustrates the point. The war must go forward with the means at hand. It cannot wait. The time for invention to count is years before war begins. Invention is more closely related to preparedness than to the conduct of war.

Edison Waited Too Long

MR. EDISON refused to devote any attention to the invention or development of war mechanisms during the World War until this country was on the eve of war, and an appeal was made to his patriotism. Then he responded, nobly and very generously, sacrificing much pecuniary gain; but it was too late to be of much help to the country.

Many of his inventions and suggestions had great inherent merit. But most, if not all, of these received independent consideration by other persons in a little different form, frequently in advance of Mr. Edison. In such cases the most promising device or plan was adopted for development. The underwater sound detection device is an example. Many investigators worked along several different lines to solve this highly important problem. Some of the others produced apparatus which gave more promise than Mr. Edison's and were greatly developed and widely used during the war. There is no question that the Navy eagerly welcomed this work and assisted it in every way possible to it.

An Impracticable Scheme

ALARGE proportion of Mr. Edison's inventions were clearly of no practical value, and consequently could not receive intensive consideration. Time was too pressing. One of these was a scheme for turning ships very quickly after a sound detection device indicated that a torpedo had been fired. Mr. Edison proposed dropping overboard several old-fashioned sea anchors, connected to the ship's bow by hawsers, while at the same time putting the helm hard over. This would result in turning the ship very quickly, and it was supposed that the torpedo would consequently miss its target. The supposition was sound only in the event of the torpedo's being fired from a greater distance than was customary by German submarines. But even should the first torpedo miss, the ship would be placed in greater jeopardy than ever by reason of the sea anchors having greatly reduced its speed. A second torpedo would find its mark almost with certainty against a target nearly dead in the water long before speed could be resumed.

Mr. Edison is too big a man in every way to feel any enduring resentment against the Army or the Navy for failing to utilize his services more fully under the very peculiar circumstances existing during the war. Certainly both Services were not only ready but anxious for all the helpful assistance they could obtain—from any source whatever. It seems almost certain that his feelings in the matter have been misrepresented.

The Shipping Bill

THE shipping bill has again been sidetracked. Quite aside from broad and vital economic questions, this action is deplorable because this bill is of major importance to the national defense; so much so that its passage is warranted on these latter grounds alone. A ship subsidy is a form of insurance on national defense, and very cheap insurance at that.

The late war could not have been won without our merchant marine which now faces extinction if the pending bill fails. This marine was constructed at stupendous cost. If it is not saved now another merchant fleet must be constructed, sooner or later, at an equally huge expense. The advantage of maintaining the existing merchant fleet over constructing another when the future emergency arises involves a great saving of national treasure; more than that, it is a national insurance against defeat on the sea.

The Navy cannot conduct a successful campaign without the assistance of a large merchant marine. It is not generally known that the United States was unable to carry out its late campaign in France except with much aid from foreign shipping. In no future war can we be assured of foreign assistance of this kind. We must count on our own resources. The merchant marine is just as indispensable a part of our fighting forces as the Regular Navy.

Moreover, in time of peace the merchant navy is a nursery of seamen. We should remember the great shortage of seamen that confronted us when we went to war in 1917. Our great battleship fleet was then of necessity practically demobilized as a fighting force and turned into a training school in order to supply the need for seamen. On this account the battleship fleet was at no time during our year and a half of war fit to fight a modern navy. If this situation is duplicated in the next war we may easily be defeated before we are even ready to fight.

Furthermore those who resist the subsidy for economic reasons are badly informed. The estimate of $30,000,000 cost per year under present circumstances does not represent an average cost. Periodically situations confront this country like that during the Boer War and again in 1915-16, when foreign carriers are diverted to war uses, leaving our products to rot in our warehouses and in the open along our railroad tracks. During these recurring periods the possession of a merchant marine would save the country literally billions of dollars, and turn the average yearly costs into a great asset instead of a liability.

Let us hope that those Senators who oppose the pending bill on erroneous economic or political grounds will consider its vital national defense aspects. These are sufficient to override other considerations. We want no more war, but if we must have it, let us at least start with a prospect of success. That prospect may even prevent the war.

Midshipmen Must Serve Three Years

IN a formal statement given out from the Navy Department on Feb. 14 it is announced that the Navy Department will return to the policy of not accepting resignations within three years after the graduation of midshipmen from the Naval Academy. This decision was made because of the increasing shortage of line officers in the Navy. At the same time the reports from Annapolis as to the status of the midshipmen corps were not reassuring. The newspaper accounts of the number of midshipmen dropped exaggerated the situation somewhat, but the official reports showed that 325 of the midshipmen had passed unsatisfactory examinations. Of these 154 will be allowed to resign, 10 will be kept back a year, and 161 will be given another examination. Of the 161 very few, if any, have any real serious deficiencies.

With this situation confronting the Navy it would appear that the Senate provision of the Omnibus bill giving credit to midshipmen for academy service should be adopted at this session. The large number of failures at Annapolis annually ought to indicate in a measure what the Government requires of midshipmen at the Naval Academy. The four years at the Academy is real service and should be counted in the pay of the younger officers as well as for those old in the Service. Even the return of the policy of not accepting the resignations of Navy officers until three years after graduation will not save the situation. Especially will this be true with the reduction in the number of appointments to the Naval Academy.

Navy Department Statement

The following is the statement given out by the direction of the Secretary of the Navy:

"The number of resignations from the Navy, together with the shortage of officers at present prevailing, has caused the department to look with concern upon the further depletion of line officers. In its desire not to hold an officer in the Service after he had expressed his wish to resign, the department has for the past two years accepted all resignations tendered.

"The shortage of line officers at sea amounts at the present time to 20 per cent. of the total required, and in view of the prospective reduction in the number of midshipmen allowed to be appointed to the Naval Academy the prospect of filling up the ships with the required officers becomes more remote. For the past seven months resignations have averaged about fifteen per month, which would be a loss of 180 of the line per year if the practice of accepting all resignations were continued.

"The department feels that the Government is entitled to a reasonable return in service rendered for the thorough and expensive education received by the midshipmen at the Naval Academy, and in view of the existing and prospective shortage of officers for the sea-going forces it has been decided to require three years' service after graduation before resignations for the purpose of entering other branches of the government service or civil life will be accepted.

"The department wishes to point out that this is not a new policy, but a return, for the benefit of the Government, to a policy which has heretofore obtained for many years."

Air Transportation Conference in Rome

HOWARD E. COFFIN, president of the National Aeronautic Association, accompanied by Col. Harold E. Hartney as his aid, sailed from New York Feb. 10 on the steamship Coronia for Rome, with a large delegation of the American Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce. The purpose of the meeting in Rome of the air transportation group is to consider the necessary steps in the advancement of international commercial air traffic, together with possible lines along which solution may be sought, and the possible developments of technical progress, uniformity of methods, control and equipment in the building up of air transport.

While abroad, Mr. Coffin also will consult with the officials of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale in Paris, the international contest authority which is affiliated with the National Aeronautic Association. He will also confer with the leaders in aviation in England, France, Italy and Spain in connection with projected contests in the United States in addition to the Pulitzer trophy classic and the Curtiss marine trophy race.

Official Charts of the Battle of Jutland to Be Corrected by the British Admiralty

DURING a recent debate in the British House of Lords the announcement was made by the representative of the Admiralty that the official charts of the battle of Jutland have been corrected. These charts will be eagerly awaited in naval circles in this country, since doubtless they include data obtained from German as well as British sources and will present as authoritative and accurate a record of that battle as will ever be done.

Unfortunately there will be some further delay in issuing the charts. The Admiralty has sent them to New Zealand for the final inspection and comment of Adm. Jellicoe, who is now visiting that distant country.

There appears to have been some reluctance on the part of the Admiralty to publish its corrected data on Jutland. It would have been deplorable had it not done so, since constructive analysis would then be impracticable. It will be remembered that similar authoritative information concerning the battle of Trafalgar was not gotten out for nearly one hundred years after the battle, and in consequence many controversial questions arose that could not be decided satisfactorily.

It appears largely due to the persistent efforts of Lord Sydenham that the Admiralty was persuaded to issue revised information of the very complicated affair at Jutland. Lord Sydenham deserves much credit for his great interest in determining the truth, regardless of how it will reflect upon the British navy. Even though matters may be brought to light that are unpalatable, in the long run the British navy will gain by an accurate public presentation of the facts.

Engineers in British Navy to be a Separate Branch

AN important and radical change has been made in the training of the officer personnel of the British navy whereby officers performing duty in the engineer branch must in the future be trained engineers, and must devote their services wholly to that department. This change back to old principles, it is understood, is the result of experiences in the World War, which, it is claimed, demonstrated fully the necessity of specialists in the engineering branch. The system of detailing a deck officer as an engineer officer, first introduced in 1902, has been abandoned.

In announcing the new plan of having engineers a distinctive body, the British Admiralty stated that it was essential because there is a definite distinction both as regards knowledge and capabilities between those who are to be trained in the science of naval war and strategic and tactical methods of fighting, and those who are to deal with the upkeep and maintenance of engineering and mechanical appliances which are necessitated by the complex machinery and weapons of modern war. Each side requires a special study.

The duties in connection with the electrical installations of warships hitherto vested in the torpedo lieutenant, a deck officer, the Admiralty states, will be taken over by the engineering department. "The maintenance of the electrical machinery," says the Admiralty circular, "is a similar function to that of other machinery on board ship, and as such is properly not the province of the executive officer."

The Admiralty also states that in the future training of officers, both the deck and engineer officers will enter Dartmouth College together and final separation will come immediately on passing out of the cadets training ship, when those destined for the engineering branch will undergo a course of four years in mechanics and electricity at the Royal Naval Engineering College at Keyham, and in the H.M.S. Vernon before being assigned to duty afloat.

The Admiralty has expressly stated that all cadets of the military branch will enter Dartmouth under the same conditions, and receive identical training until they are rated midshipmen, it is also ordered, that officers selected to specialize in engineering will separate finally and irrevocably from the executive branch, "and though remaining in the military branch will forego all right to subsequent reversion to deck duties and to military command."

New Type Torpedo Carrier to be Tested in Maneuvers

THE Davis-Douglas type of torpedo plane, piloted by Lt. Troy N. Thweatt, U.S.N., on Feb. 9, left Anacostia, D.C., for Key West, Fla., to join the torpedo plane squadron of the U.S. Fleet. The ship was especially dispatched to southern waters by the Bureau of Aeronautics, where it is planned to give this type of torpedo carrier a thorough test during the winter maneuvers with the fleet. It is the lightest and most progressive development of its type in the Navy. It is stated that a torpedo plane squadron is to be established in the near future for the Battle Fleet, and that the squadron will probably be entirely equipped with this latest and most modern type of torpedo carrier. The distance from Anacostia to Key West is about 1,160 miles.

U.S. Coast Guard's First Admiral

REAR ADM. W. E. REYNOLDS, U.S. C.G., commandant of the Coast Guard, recently commissioned from captain, is the first rear admiral the Coast Guard has ever had. He is an officer of long and efficient service, which includes duty with the famous Corwin expedition to the Arctic regions. During the World War Adm. Reynolds was chief of staff in the 12th Naval District. He entered the Service as a cadet in 1878, and has had nearly twenty-two years' sea service. As a cadet he was the first white man so far as known to set foot on Wrangel Island.

Generals and Admiral Deliver Pulpit Sermons

AN unusual church service for the Sojourners' Club, Washington Chapter No. 3, was held at Trinity Church, Washington, D.C., on Feb. 11, when the pulpit was occupied by Adm. R. E. Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, Maj. Gen. Commandant John A. Lejeune, U.S.M.C., and Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Chief of Chemical Warfare Service. There was a large attendance of Sojourners.

Adm. Coontz spoke of the power of God. Gen. Lejeune's subject was the value of prayer and how in the face of death at the front during the World War our grime-faced Marines knelt in prayer. Gen. Fries's subject was predestination. Each used for his text certain passages of the Scripture.

This was the second time that Gen. Lejeune has preached a sermon to a church congregation and the first time for Adm. Coontz and Gen. Fries. Gen. Fries remarked that he was glad of the opportunity to deliver a sermon in a church, for in his younger days it was difficult for him to decide whether he would be a preacher or an Army officer.

From the many favorable comments made by those in attendance it would be a good thing for these warriors to continue along these lines and educate our people that the men in our Services think also of the other things in life besides their profession of keeping this country safe.

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 20, the Sojourners' Club will hold the third of its series of informal dances at Washington Barracks Officers' Club, to which all members and friends of the club are invited. Membership in Washington Chapter No. 3 now totals 616.

British Discussion of Capt. Knox's Book

THE British Army, Navy and Air Force Gazette of Jan. 27, 1923, devotes more than a column to a criticism of "The Eclipse of American Sea Power," by Capt. Dudley W. Knox, U.S.N., Naval Editor of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Although the book was published immediately after the close of the conference to discuss the limitation of naval armament, held in Washington in 1921, interest in the work is revived by the suggestion that a second conference should be held in connection with a further limitation of naval armament.

Capt. Knox, naturally, sets forth the American naval viewpoint in his book, and shows conclusively that America was the only nation that sacrificed anything in the conference. The British reviewer, however, takes a different view, and although he is very fair in his discussion of Capt. Knox's book, he urges the readers of the Gazette individually to obtain a copy of the book and study it for themselves.

Navy to Train Recruits Afloat

IN a circular letter from the Bureau of Navigation, Rear Adm. Thomas Washington outlines a plan for the instruction of recruits afloat. With the short time that would be allowed for recruits on shore it is necessary to transfer this activity of the Navy to the fleet.

In the course of his letter Adm. Washington says:

"It is noted that some commanding officers have already had organized instruction for their men and made the course a part of the daily work, resulting in increased efficiency, which, in the case of Engineer departments, is clearly indicated by a marked increase in the steam engineering competition multiple. In addition to increased efficiency attained, the Bureau of Engineering has noted a decrease in the operating expenses and expenditures for repairs and upkeep of the ships in which this course of action has been followed.

"With about 36,000 recruits in the Service this year, the bureau has had to turn the task of training them over to the Service afloat instead of using the trade schools ashore. Work along the line of a more thorough education and training of the individual has been inaugurated in other navies since the Limitation of Armaments Conference. It is therefore advisable that corresponding attention be given to individual training in our Navy under present circumstances."

Capt. White, U.S.N., Gives Navy Talk Over Radio

CAPT. RICHARD D. WHITE, U.S.N., officer in charge of the Navy Recruiting Bureau in New York city, gave an interesting talk at Station WEAF, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Walker street, New York city, on Lincoln's Birthday, which was broadcast by radio. The captain's remarks were heard with the greatest clearness and distinctness and were devoted to the necessity of a powerful Navy. Other speakers who made interesting remarks from the same station appropriate to the day which were clearly heard included Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards and Col. Charles Gerhardt, U.S.A. The band of the 16th U.S. Infantry played a splendid musical program.

Loving Cup Presented Warrant Officer Sharp

AN enjoyable gathering took place Wednesday evening, Feb. 7, at the Warrant Officers' Club at Camp Jesup, Ga., to present a loving cup and a solid silver service to Wnt. Ofr. Eber I. Sharp, U.S.A., president of the Warrant Officers' Association, U.S.A., as a token of esteem and reward for his efforts on behalf of the association. There were about thirty members and their families present. Wnt. Ofr. F. W. Stone made the presentation speech. Refreshments were served.

Wnt. Ofr. Sharp is one of the "old Army," and his popularity extends throughout the Service. During the late war Wnt. Ofr. Sharp reached the grade of major, and he is now identified with the Quartermaster Corps, U.S.A., at the supply depot, Camp Jesup, Ga.

Army Finance Office to Move

THE Army Finance office, which has been housed in the Lemon Building for a considerable time, is to vacate its present quarters and will be assigned space on the third floor of the Munitions Building. This will necessitate the office of the Chief of Cavalry and the office of the Chief of Coast Artillery's giving up part of their present offices to the newcomers, and perhaps some of the other branches in the Munitions Building.

Donahey, Cartoonist, on Cleveland Plain Dealer

IN the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of Jan. 27 a cartoon by J. H. Donahey of the Cleveland Plain Dealer was reprinted. It was erroneously stated that Mr. Donahey was the cartoonist for the Los Angeles Times. Mr. Donahey has been identified with the Cleveland Plain Dealer for a number of years and his work is well known in connection with that paper.

Retirement of Disabled Emergency Officers

Naval Omnibus Bill Discussed

Inequalities in Longevity Credits

Our Navy and Our Foreign Policy

Appointment of New Judge Advocate General

THE Bursum bill was brought to life again this week when its advocates had about given up hope that there would be any legislation enacted at this session placing disabled emergency officers on the retired list. This was through the substitution of a bill which now has the endorsement of Secretary of War Weeks. The bill in its new form, it is stated, is satisfactory to the disabled veterans.

As will be noted by the text of the bill printed below, the funds for the retired emergency officers will be disbursed through the Veterans' Bureau. This is an important difference, although it will not in any way affect the status of the retired emergency officers. It was even suggested that Regular officers and enlisted men who were retired as the result of disabilities received in the war should be paid through the Veterans' Bureau. Money expended through the Veterans' Bureau is for past wars. It is not regarded as money for preparedness, and therefore should not be expended under this head in the national budget. The Secretary of War has never been opposed to giving disabled emergency officers retired pay, but has objected to its being charged to the support of the Army.

The pacifist element in the country is constantly preaching about the cost of the Army and the Navy. By misrepresenting the different items in the budget they have sought to create the impression that about 90 cents of every dollar collected by the Federal Government goes to support the Army and Navy. By this propaganda they have sought to hold the Army and Navy responsible for practically all of the federal taxes. This is why Secretary Weeks has objected to the Bursum bill. He feared that the increase would be charged to preparedness and result in the reduction of the appropriations for the Army and Navy.

The text of the substitute Bursum bill follows:

S. 1565.—Making eligible for retirement under certain conditions officers of the U.S. Army, other than officers of the Regular Army, who incurred physical disability in line of duty while in the service of the United States during the war.

Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby created in the Veterans' Bureau an Emergency Officers' Retired List upon which former emergency officers of the classes described in Secs. 2 and 3 of this act may be enrolled as of the grade each such officer occupied in the emergency forces at the time he incurred the permanent disability which warrants his enrollment on said list.

Sec. 2. That every person who served as an officer of the Army of the United States during the World War, other than officer of the Regular Army, who has incurred physical disability in line of duty and who shall be rated by the Veterans' Bureau at not less than 30 per centum permanent disability, shall, upon application, be enrolled upon the Emergency Officers' Retired List established by Sec. 1 of this act, and, after being so enrolled, shall be retired with the privileges, and shall receive 75 per centum of the pay and allowances authorized by law in (1908) (1923) for the rank of the officer at the time he incurred such permanent disability.

Sec. 3. That every person who served as an officer of the U.S. Army, during the World War, other than an officer of the Regular Army, who has incurred physical disability in line of duty and who shall be rated by the Veterans' Bureau as having incurred permanent disability less than 30 per centum and more than 10 per centum, shall upon application be enrolled upon the Emergency Officers' Retired List established by Sec. 1 of the act, but without any retired pay, and shall be entitled only to such compensation and other benefits as may now or hereafter be provided for by law for such disability.

Sec. 4. All pay and compensation to which former emergency officers may be entitled under the provisions of this act shall be paid solely out of the compensation appropriation fund for the Veterans' Bureau and shall be in lieu of disability compensation benefits provided in the act creating the Veterans' Bureau and amendments thereto.

Sec. 5. That no person shall be entitled to benefits under the provisions of this act except he make application as hereinbefore provided within twelve months after the passage of this act.

The Carabao Wallow

IN assuming the duties of Paramount Carabao at the annual wallow at Washington Feb. 10, Brig. Gen. Harry H. Bandholtz proposed an amendment to the constitution of the Military Order of Carabao which would make it an organization of great strength and importance. He proposed that any soldier who had served two years in the Philippines would be made eligible for membership in the order. In the membership under the new plan certain civilian officials who have to do with the administration of the affairs of the Philippines would also become eligible to membership.

It has been apparent for some time to the Carabaos that unless there was a change in their organization the order would soon pass away. At the same time there has been a great deal of talk of organizing an order composed of officers and soldiers who had served a tour of duty in the Islands. Soldiers who have served in the Islands naturally desire to renew their acquaintances and it is believed that with the traditions of the Military Order of Carabao a strong organization will spring up which will be kept alive by an annual dinner. Soon there would be a sufficient number eligible for the organization so that there would be a corral in every large city. As the result of the suggestion of Gen. Bandholtz a business meeting of the order will be held shortly in Washington at which action will be taken on the matter.

While the purpose of the order has always been good fellowship, these dinners have called to the attention of the country the splendid work that was done by the Army and the Navy in the Philippines. This work is being continued and an annual dinner by the Carabaos in every city of the country once a year would let the people know what their representatives in the Islands are doing for civilization. At the dinners, mingled with entertainment, are always two or three good preparedness speeches which would be of great benefit to the morale of the country.

The Washington corral has decided hereafter to hold its annual dinners on Feb. 3, the anniversary of the opening of the Philippine Insurrection. This may be adopted by the national organization if the constitution is amended to make all soldiers who have served two years in the Philippines eligible for the order.

New Judge Advocate General

IT is stated that the Secretary of War does not regard the nomination of Col. Walter A. Bethel to be Judge Advocate General instead of Col. John A. Hull, Acting Judge Advocate General, as a reflection on the latter. He does not even think that Col. Hull was passed over, although he happens to be the senior colonel in the Judge Advocate General's Department.

If Col. Hull had been nominated, he would have shut the door of promotion to the other colonels in the department for fifteen years. This is on the assumption that he would have been kept in the office until his retirement for age, which would not be until 1938. On the other hand, Col. Bethel is due to retire for age in seven years, and might even apply for retirement at the end of his first term. He could not possibly stay at the head of the Judge Advocate General's Department for two whole terms of four years.

The appointment of Col. Bethel not only rewards a colonel who was a general officer in the World War, but it leaves the way open for the future advancement of Col. Hull or any other colonel in the Judge Advocate General's Department. It can be stated that the Secretary of War regrets that the impression should be created that on account of being the senior colonel in the department, Col. Hull is passed over in the selection of Col. Bethel. The Secretary does not so regard it, on account of the longer service of Col. Bethel in the Army and his age. He entertains a very high regard for the ability of Col. Hull.

Officers for ZR-1 and ZR-3

A TENTATIVE list of officers for the ZR-1 and ZR-3, the new rigid dirigibles for the Navy, has been submitted to the Bureau of Navigation by a board which was appointed to pass upon the candidates for these assignments. It was the plan originally not to assemble the crews until July 1, but now they will be brought together at Lakehurst, N.J., early in March.

The command of the two airships has been offered to Capt. F. R. McCreary, U. S.N. Whether he will be able to assume the duty depends upon the program of the fleet. The same is true of a number of the other officers who have been recommended for this duty.

Lt. Cdr. J. H. Klein, U.S.N., now on duty in the Bureau of Navigation, has been recommended as executive officer of the ZR-1. Lt. Cdr. Lewis Hancock, U.S.N., and Lt. Cdr. M. R. Pierce, U.S.N., have been selected as navigators. The watch officers will all be lieutenants. For this duty Lts. Rosendahl, Joseph C. Arnold, H. D. Wiley, B. F. Staud, E. H. Kincaid and W. O. Bailey have been recommended.

Foreign Policy Rests on Navy

IN an address to the District of Columbia Commandery, M.O.L.L.U.S., Rear Adm. Hugh Rodman, U.S.N., on Feb. 12 declared that our foreign policy rests upon the Navy. He showed how the strength of the Navy made it possible to place the Army in France, where it won the brilliant victory of the World War. He concluded his address by making an appeal to the men who are not now in the active Navy to remain loyal to the establishment and combat pacifists in their efforts to weaken the defenses of the country. In the course of his address Adm. Rodman said:

"Our foreign policies are just as strong as our Navy, and no stronger. It therefore stands to reason that if we are to maintain our position and strength in international affairs and relations we must have an adequate, up-to-date and efficient naval force at all times to make our voice felt and carry weight."

"The value of an adequate Navy can best be illustrated by the part which the Navy of Great Britain bore in the late war, for without it, it is no exaggeration to say, that had it not been ready at the very beginning of the war, and superior in strength to that of the Germans, the war must have ended disastrously to the Allies within six months."

"Germany had been building a Navy for years that was planned to be second to none, but made the fatal mistake of having one of only 80 per cent. of the strength of Great Britain. Let us profit by this experience; we do not want an 80 per cent. Navy, but one that is up to the full 100 per cent."

"Let me repeat what I have stated on other occasions, namely, that we never landed an Army in France, and then qualify it by saying, that when the seas had been made comparatively safe by defeating the German fleet and confining it to its home waters, when we had mastered the enemy's submarine menace, which, for a time threatened overseas transportation, we then sent our men, arms, ammunition, stores, supplies, in detachments and by individual ships, extending over a period of months, to the friendly shores of France, and there constituted them into an Army which gave such a gallant and well merited account of itself, and contributed so much to the resultant victory."

AN appeal has been sent out by the Secretary of the Navy to all ships and stations for the speeding up of the training of recruits so as to meet the extraordinary conditions which confront the personnel of the Navy. The Secretary expresses his confidence in the ability of the Navy to meet the situation.

THE Naval Omnibus bill was the subject of a number of conferences at the Navy Department and the Capitol during the past week. Acting Chairman Poindexter has assumed the role of a Sphinx, declining even to discuss what will be his attitude when the bill comes over from the House. It is known, however, that the Senator and a number of the members of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs still maintain that the House's method of handling the bill is not acceptable. The way that the bill will come to the conference committee will shut out any of the provisions that are not included in the House bill. This will be true unless the Senator is able to have it referred to his committee and report it out before it goes to the conferees.

Senator Poindexter attempted to solve the problem on Feb. 12 by securing the passage of his bill (H.R. 7864), which would give an opportunity to adjust the differences between the Senate and House committees in conference. Senator King, as is his habit, prevented action on the bill by interposing an objection to the bill. Senator Wadsworth discussed briefly Sec. 12 which would give midshipmen later than the class of 1916 credit for service at the Academy. His objection was that "it is utterly unfair to the other Services to repeal the law of 1916 [1913] and permit naval officers to have the advantage of that increase, when the Congress decreed that thereafter they should not have that advantage."

Inequalities in Longevity Credits

IN announcing that he would make an effort to secure consideration of the Omnibus bill, as reported from the Senate committee at a later date, Senator Poindexter discussed the merits of Sec. 12. In the course of his remarks on the subject the Senator said:

"The law to which the Senator from New York refers was passed in 1913, instead of 1916; but the trouble about it was that while it provided that all of the midshipmen who graduated after 1916 should not be allowed to count their service at the Naval Academy in the computation of service for the purpose of computing longevity pay, it allowed all those who graduated in 1916 and previous years to count such time. It was not considered important by the Committee on Naval Affairs whether that time is counted or not counted, but it was considered important that all officers in the Navy should be put upon the same basis as to pay."

"In 1922 the Pay bill to which the Senator from New York refers, which applied to six Services, established an entirely new basis of pay for officers of these Services. Before the passage of that act pay had been based almost entirely upon rank. After the passage of that act it was based principally upon length of service, and it was the view of the committee that when that new basis was established and the pay which officers of the Navy should receive was based upon the length of service the same method of computing service should be applied to all officers of the Navy; that there should not be one class of officers who, in the average length of expectation of service in the Navy, should receive from $13,000 to $15,000 more in the way of pay and allowances than another set of officers of identical rank and of identical length and character of service. In a word, the committee proposed this measure simply for the purpose of removing this discrimination. It does not make any difference whether you take service in the Naval Academy as a standard upon which pay is computed or some other standard; the object is to obtain a just result, fair pay for all officers entering the same Services, who are of the same rank and have the same length and character of service."

"At some other time before the adjournment of the session I will ask the Senate to take up and consider House bill 7864."

THE annual Cavalry officers reunion was held at Wardman Park Hotel in Washington on Feb. 6 and was attended by a large and enthusiastic gathering of Cavalry officers and their wives on duty in Washington and vicinity. Gen. Willard A. Holbrook, Chief of Cavalry, and Mrs. Holbrook received. Among the out of town guests were Col. W. R. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor of Hagerstown; Col. and Mrs. Bernard of Harrisburg, Pa.; Col. S. D. Rothenbach, commandant of the Tank Center, Camp Meade; and Col. Casteel.

Conferees Discuss Appropriation Bill

THE Army Appropriation bill as it went to conference carried in the military activities section alone a total of 107 amendments, none involving a large amount of money.

The question of providing division headquarters for the Organized Reserves seems to be delaying agreement of the conferees more than any other item in the appropriations for the Reserves. No report of action upon the various personnel amendments has come out of the committee.

The conference committee on the Army bill on Feb. 15 had reached a tentative agreement on the National Guard items. It stated that the appropriations agreed to are a slight reduction below the Senate bill. The Organized Reserves provisions were passed over by the committee, the House conferees insisting upon more data from the War Department, it is understood that the Senate conferees are stoutly insisting upon the increases in the bill as it passed the Senate.

The conferees on the Army bill give an entire day to the consideration of the Hull and McKellar amendments for the "submerged captains." The term "submerged captains" was invented by Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs. It refers to the demoted captains who were formerly among the lieutenants on the promotion list.

These two amendments were really the test of the day's session on Feb. 14. Maj. Jay L. Benedict, G.S., was before the committee to submit the draft of an amendment prepared at the department and introduced by Chairman Wadsworth. After discussing the effects of the different amendments proposed, Maj. Benedict was asked to make certain changes in it and submit it again to the conferees.

The discussion took a wide range, going into many of the features of the promotion list and to the merits of the claim of the large list of officers whose nominations were held up last session. Maj. Benedict showed how that this class of officers had a grievance as well as the "submerged captains." Even Representative Stafford became interested in the workings of the promotion list and declared that the explanation of Maj. Benedict was enlightening and that he now thought that he began to grasp the intricacies of Army personnel.

Naval Omnibus Bill Up

An unsuccessful effort was made on Feb. 15 to displace the Naval Omnibus bill (S. 4137) on the calendar of the House, by Representative Crampton of Michigan, who wanted the House to consider a resolution asking the State Department for data as to shipment of liquor to the embassies. By a large majority the House decided to take up the Navy bill, which indicates that measure will pass the House soon.

Legislative Program

Chairman Campbell of the House Committee on Rules has fixed Feb. 19 as the date upon which he will give Acting Chairman McKenzie hearing on his resolution to set out day for the military committee. Chairman Campbell has virtually given Acting Chairman McKenzie assurances that his resolution will be reported favorably. It is only a matter of working out the details of the bills to be considered. Mr. McKenzie expressed the belief that most of the Army bills pending in the House, including the non-commissioned officers will be reported out.

American Troops Return from Germany

THE 3d Battalion of the 8th Infantry, U.S.A., from Coblenz, Germany, disembarked at Charleston, S.C., from the transport St. Mihiel on Feb. 8 and went to Fort Moultrie, S.C., for station. An official party, headed by Mayor Grace of Charleston, boarded the transport down the bay and extended a welcome to the soldiers. The 2d Battalion of the regiment which arrived home from Germany last year and has been stationed at Fort Moultrie since May last, was present at the dock to greet the 3d Battalion. Maj. Gen. C. S. Farnsworth, U.S.A., reviewed a parade of the 2d Battalion at the fort. The St. Mihiel arrived at Charleston from Savannah, Ga., where the 1st Battalion of the 8th was landed on Feb. 7. She left for New York Feb. 9 and arrived at the Army Base at South Brooklyn Feb. 11, where the last of the officers and men who boarded the transport at Coblenz were landed. There were 27 officers 152 enlisted men, in command of Capt. Harry V. Hand.

Examinations for Second Lieutenancies in the Army Will Be Held June 25

THERE will be an examination for second lieutenant, Regular Army, under the provisions of Army Regulations 605-5 and Change I thereto, beginning Monday, June 25, 1923, in each corps area of the Army.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.

- (a) A male citizen of the United States.
- (b) Between the ages of 21-30 years.
- (c) Either (1) a warrant officer or enlisted man of the Regular Army of at least two years service; or (2) a Reserve officer; an officer, warrant officer or enlisted man of the National Guard; or a graduate of a technical institution approved by the Secretary of War.

Persons who do not come under the above, but are eligible for appointment as a Reserve officer, may make application for such appointment to the Adjutant General of the Army, Washington, D.C., stating the reason therefor.

The examination will be competitive to fill vacancies in the following branches:

Air Service, Cavalry, Chemical Warfare, Coast Artillery Corps, Corps of Engineers, Field Artillery, Finance Department, Infantry, Ordnance Department, Quartermaster Corps and Signal Corps. Applicants in making out application will make a first and second choice. Warrant officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army are commissioned ahead of other persons, and results of the examination will be given out approximately two months after final examination.

Application blanks and full information relative to the examination, subjects, etc., may be had from the adjutant of any military camp, post or station, corps area headquarters, or from the Adjutant General of the Army, Washington, D.C. Applications should be sent through channels to the corps area commander. It will first be acted on by the preliminary board appointed by the commanding officer of each military post. This is done to ascertain the applicant's general fitness to appear before the final examining board.

1st Division Annual Dinner to be Held on March 17

THE officers of the 1st Division, A.E.F., will hold their fifth annual dinner on March 17 at the Hotel Commodore, New York city. Those of this division will recall that it is approximately five years from the date that Gen. Pershing called the officers of the division to Chaumont-en-Vixen, France, and told them that they were going to be sent in to fill the gap created by the collapse of the British 5th Army Corps under the command of Gen. Hough.

Among those who are expected to be present at the dinner are Gen. John J. Pershing, Chief of Staff; Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, Deputy Chief of Staff; Maj. Gen. Robert L. Bullard and Brig. Gen. Frank Parker. During actual hostilities the 1st Division had three combat commanders, Gens. Hines, Bullard and Summerall. As Maj. Gen. Summerall is in Hawaii, it is not expected that he will attend.

Charity Entertainment Held at Memorial Hall, West Point

A BENEFIT bridge and dancing party was held at Memorial Hall, West Point, Feb. 7, under the auspices of the West Point Relief Committee. The entertainment was planned and carried out by a committee consisting of Mrs. Sladen, Mrs. Roger Alexander, Mrs. MacMillan and Mrs. Bonesteel, who were assisted by a sub-committee composed of Mmes. Morrison, Weaver and Collins. Many beautiful and useful articles had been donated for the auction and others were disposed of by raffle and as prizes at bridge and in dancing. Maj. Chilton, Rice and Buckner took turns in acting as auctioneer and brought excellent prices for their wares. The bridge players enjoyed their game in the lower hall, while "lucky number" dancing, under the direction of Capt. and Mmes. Hudnutt and Woodward, divided the attention of those in the upper hall with the many attractions. The "wheel of fortune" managed by Maj. Harris and Capt. Whitcomb and the "fish pond" directed by Capt. Hoge were popular. Mrs. Crittenger and Mrs. Deaces presided over the money-changing booth and the raffles were in charge of Mrs. Sladen, Mrs. Timberlake, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Van Vliet, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Slaughter, Mrs. Logan, Miss Newlands, Mrs. DuBarry Sutherland, Miss Betsy Sladen and Miss Consuelo Asensio. Ted Timberlake, Lewis Brown, Ticky Bonesteel and Pat Carter assisted. Mrs. Buechler had charge of the cigarette booth and she was assisted by three little girls, Rose Cubbison, Dorothy Donaldson and Helen Hines. The Misses Anne Wilson and Sally Sharon sold candy. Prizes were given for lucky numbers at the door and these were in charge of Mmes. Nichols and Kimball, Col. Holt making the announcements. Refreshments were served after the bridge game by the refreshment committee, Mmes. Robinson, Danford, Cubbison and Wilson, assisted by Mmes. Hobbs and Prichard. Later there was competitive dancing. The winning couple were Maj. and Mrs. Ryder. The judges were Gen. Sladen, Col. Reynolds, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Danford and Mr. Vizay.

Officers of the Navy Eligible for Promotion

THE following officers have become eligible for promotion from the dates indicated in 1923:

To be captain, Feb. 9—Clarence L. Arnold, vice W. M. Crose, retired.

To be commander, Feb. 9—Claudius R. Hyatt, vice C. L. Arnold, promoted.

To be lieutenant commander, Feb. 9—Roscoe E. Schuirman, vice C. R. Hyatt, promoted.

To be lieutenants, Feb. 1—Samuel E. Lee, vice F. S. Gibson, resigned; George T. Campbell, Feb. 2, vice M. W. Gilmarin, retired; Frank Kinne, Feb. 2, vice J. I. Ballinger, retired; Frank Kerr, Feb. 9, vice R. E. Schuirman, promoted.

The following machinists have become eligible for promotion to chief machinists from Feb. 5; Bernard S. Riley, Sidney C. Seale, Erich O. Tauer, Harry A. Bryan, Warren L. Graeff, Hector L. Ross, John H. Chinnis, Robert I. Hart, Albert F. Blake, Jesse S. Hooper, Edward I. Dailey, John Heep, James H. Cain, Carl J. Hanson, William H. Wright and Thomas T. Emerton.

Army Dance at Washington Feb. 9

THE Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks headed the receiving line at the Army dance given at Rauscher's in Washington on Feb. 9 in honor of Deputy Chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, U.S.A., and Mrs. Hines. The Secretary and Mrs. Weeks were assisted in receiving by the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. J. Mayhew Wainwright, Mrs. Charles S. Farnsworth, Mrs. Lorenzo D. Gasser, Maj. James A. Lyons made the presentations.

New York Engineer Districts Honor Gen. Burr at Dinner

THE employees of the 1st, 2d and 3d New York U.S. Engineer districts held their third annual dinner at the Hotel Breslin, New York city, on Feb. 8.

This year the occasion took the form of a farewell and testimonial dinner to Brig. Gen. Edward Burr, who at the end of this month goes on leave prior to retiring from the Service in May. Gen. Burr completes a term of more than forty years' service, devoted principally to the Corps of Engineers, except during the World War, when he commanded the 62d F.A. Brigade in France. It was following this latter service that he assumed charge of the 1st District in the spring of 1919, and since then has administered this important Engineer post. This farewell dinner was a tribute of the personnel who have worked with him and whose loyalty he has inspired during this last assignment of a life-long service in the corps.

Among those present besides Gen. and Mrs. Burr were Maj. and Mrs. R. G. Guyer, Lt. and Mrs. L. F. Rhodes and Lt. C. C. Hough.

General Cronkhite Fights Retirement

NOMINATIONS for appointment and promotion in the Army are threatened with a hold up, due to a protest against the forced retirement on Feb. 1, 1923, of Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, U.S.A., on attaining the age of 62 years. This order was published in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Senator Glass of Virginia has asked that the nomination of Brig. Gen. Hanson E. Ely to succeed Gen. Cronkhite be held up pending an investigation into his retirement and the death of the latter's son.

A 65-page pamphlet has been issued and circulated entitled, "The Case of Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, Printed Privately for the Information of His Friends."

This pamphlet goes into a compilation of the facts and law in the case, as viewed by friends of Gen. Cronkhite, both with respect to his retirement and the mystery surrounding the death of his son, Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite.

Publicity given to this circular attracted the attention of the Senate, and especially the Senators from Virginia, where the 80th Division, of which Gen. Cronkhite was commander in the World War, was raised and trained.

Senator Glass of Virginia on Feb. 14 asked the Senate Military Committee to delay action on the nomination of Gen. Ely until the retirement of Gen. Cronkhite can be investigated.

Secretary of War Weeks, when asked for a statement on Feb. 14 concerning the allegations in the pamphlet, said:

"There is nothing to the Cronkhite case except that the War Department wanted a major general who could do active duty, and there was no prospect that Gen. Cronkhite could." The Secretary said he had deeply sympathized with Gen. Cronkhite and had personally done everything he could to further an investigation of the killing of the general's son.

Mr. Weeks declared he had personally arranged two conferences for the general with Attorney General Daugherty, and that the Attorney General had finally been persuaded to take up the case, although the shooting occurred in a public highway and was not properly a case for the Department of Justice. Gen. Cronkhite, Secretary Weeks said, had persuaded the Attorney General to pursue the case, though the Department of Justice was convinced there was not sufficient proof to convict, and that the necessary expense of time and money was not justified.

Secretary Weeks denied emphatically that the retirement of Gen. Cronkhite at the age of 62 years was in any way a "disciplinary action." He also denied there was any ulterior motive in ordering the general to Panama, and said that the general was ordered there "simply because he was first on the list for foreign service, and the Panama post was considered the most desirable."

Field Artillery Officers on Wide Inspection Trip

MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM J. SNOW, Chief of Field Artillery, has assigned Lt. Col. Augustine McIntyre and Maj. Maxwell Murray, both on duty in the office of the Chief of Field Artillery, to an extensive inspection trip which will include Hawaii. Following are the itineraries of the two officers:

Colonel McIntyre

5th Corps Area.—Culver Military Academy, May 12; Fort Benjamin Harrison, May 15; Ohio State University, May 18.

6th Corps Area.—University of Wisconsin, April 27; Fort Sheridan, Ill., April 30; University of Chicago, May 3; University of Illinois, May 6; Purdue University, May 9.

7th Corps Area.—Fort Des Moines, Iowa, April 16; University of Iowa, April 20; Fort Snelling, Minn., April 23.

8th Corps Area.—University of Oklahoma, Feb. 16; Texas A. and M. College, Feb. 23; Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Feb. 25; Fort Bliss, Texas, March 3.

9th Corps Area.—Presidio of Monterey, March 8; Leland Stanford University, March 11; University of Oregon, April 3; Camp Lewis, April 6; Fort D. A. Russell, April 12.

Major Murray

4th Corps Area.—Fort Benning, Feb. 21; Alabama Poly. Tech. Institute, Feb. 23.

8th Corps Area.—Fort Sill, Feb. 27; Colorado Agricultural College, March 5.

9th Corps Area.—University of Utah, March 9; Presidio of San Francisco, March 13.

Officers Elected by N. G. Association

THE complete list of officers elected at the annual convention of the National Guard Association of the United States at Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 1-3, is as follows: President, Brig. Gen. Edward L. Logan of Massachusetts; first vice president, Gen. Charles I. Martin of Kansas; secretary, Lt. Col. LeRoy Pearson of Michigan; treasurer, Brig. Gen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania.

A vice president from each of the nine Corps Areas was chosen as follows: 1st, Maj. Frank J. Abbott, New Hampshire; 2d, Brig. Gen. Franklin W. Ward, New York; 3d, Brig. Gen. M. A. Reckord, Maryland; 4th, Brig. Gen. R. J. Travis, Georgia; 5th, Adj. Gen. J. Morris, Kentucky; 6th, Col. F. R. Schwengel, Chicago; 7th, Col. A. Thomas, Nebraska; 8th, Lt. Col. Weathered, Texas.

The convention adopted a resolution approving the occupation of the Ruhr valley by the French and Belgian forces, and the resolution stated that the occupation was the only expedient left to those patient people in order that their countries may continue to exist and their nationals live in peace and happiness.

Resolutions were also adopted recommending that Congress pass immediately the Bursum bill, providing for the retirement of disabled emergency officers on the same status as disabled Regular Army officers; that the National Defense act be amended so as to provide for the commissioning of all National Guard officers in the Army of the United States instead of issuing them a so-called "dual commission" in the National Guard and the Officers Reserve Corps, and that certain deficiencies as to appropriations and other provisions in the National Defense act be corrected, and that certain technical changes be made in National Guard Regulations.

Maj. Gen. G. C. Rickards, Chief of the Militia Bureau, made an interesting address.

Brig. Gen. Dwight E. Aultman, U.S.A., spoke on "The National Guard as the First Line of Defense."

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Martin, U.S.A., spoke on the National Defense act.

State Activities of the National Guard

THE annual assembly of the officers of the Colorado National Guard took place in Denver, Jan. 15-22. Over sixty National Guard officers attended. The assembly was highly beneficial as it included lectures by the Regular Army instructors, the annual physical examination of all officers, splendid practical demonstrations by the Regular Army troops at Fort Logan, a dinner to all National Guard and Regular Army officers by the Governor, W. E. Sweet, and, it also gave the officers a chance to take in most of the features of the stock show, held in Denver during that week.

All organizations in Colorado are now in their new armories. Col. Danks has just returned from a course at the War College. Capt. Baird has just returned from a course at Fort Riley, and Capt. Fink has just come back from a course at Fort Sill. All officers completed their courses with high credit. Capt. Seyfried is pursuing a course at Fort Benning and Lt. Devalon is pursuing a course at the Tank School at Camp Meade.

Florida

INCIDENT to the opening of the South Florida Fair at Tampa early this month, battle exercises between National Guard troops representing "Red" and "White" armies drew thousands of people to the grandstand, and to the adjoining open spaces about the race track center field.

Lieut. Col. S. L. Lowry, jr., directed the operations of the defensive force and Capt. Jack Smith directed the offensive.

Michigan

AT the session of the officers' school of the Michigan National Guard at Detroit, Jan. 28, fifty officers were present for the course and also some visiting officers as spectators. Col. Wallace conducted the problem. Lt. Col. LeRoy Pearson, the U.S. Property and Disbursing Officer, came down from Lansing. Maj. Weber, commanding the 106th Cavalry units in Detroit, was among those present and it is planned to enlarge the problem to include Cavalry so that the Cavalry officers may have some work. Lt. Col. Merry, 2d Inf., stationed at Fort Wayne in Detroit addressed the officers on "The One Army of the United States," and stressed the necessity for co-operation between all the components of the Army, and stated that he and the officers at Fort Wayne were desirous of helping in any way they could.

The officers of the 125th Infantry plan to equip themselves with white uniforms for use during camp after duties. On Feb. 22, the Detroit units of the 32d Division will give a military ball at the armory, Brush and Larned streets, Detroit, Mich.

Virginia

THE date for the annual encampment of the Virginia National Guard has been announced by Adj. Gen. W. W. Sale, as follows: The Infantry will camp from Aug. 12 to 22 if a brigade encampment is ordered, and Aug. 12 to Sept. 11 in case of a regimental encampment.

The 11th Field Artillery will go to Fort Bragg in August, and the Tank Corps from July 28 to Aug. 11. The Field Artillery will be under command of Lt. Col. McC. H. Jeffries.

Wisconsin

EVERY day in every way the 105th Cavalry, Wisconsin N.G., is getting better and better. Three troops of the 105th are stationed in Milwaukee and use the same armory for drill purposes. The enlisted personnel have all purchased high-top leather lace boots, and all vie in competition of neatness. Very many non-commissioned officers and privates have secured tailored uniforms and now with the garrison belt made part of the off-duty uniform no one will have aught but a word of admiration for their appearance. The officers, due to the influence of the Cavalry School, have all begun to shine up and blossom out until the most critical can find little fault.

Along with improvement in dress and bearing comes the improvement along more serious lines. For the first time in the history of the Wisconsin National Guard, the units here are beginning to compete in the N.R.A. matches. The three troops of the 105th, stationed in Milwaukee, each entered a team and fired in the National Military Company team match held by the N.R.A. under the direction of the War Department Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. Hqs. Troop led with a clear margin throughout the match, with Troop B, second, closely followed by Troop A.

A team was selected from the troops here to compete in the state championship indoor team match fired at Delafield, Wis. St. John's Military Academy (national champions, R.O.T.C., this class) won, but with a very slight margin.

On Feb. 4 the 105th Cavalry rifle team fired a match with the Century Rifle Club of Milwaukee and won with comparative ease, by a score of 948 to 914. Feb. 20 another Cavalry rifle team, representing the Hqs. 22d Cavalry Division from Neenah, Wis., will fire a match with the team of the 105th Cavalry in Milwaukee. The Neenah rifle team holds the championship of the Fox River Rifle Association, composed of military organizations of all branches. Much local interest is being manifested, as this match will bring together what is considered the best teams in their respective sections of the state.

The officers have organized the 105th Cavalry Polo Association and have succeeded in developing two pretty fast teams. The polo work at present is confined to work in the cage on the drill floor on account of the severe weather outdoors. This work maintains the strength of wrist and sureness of eye, and will enable them to resume the work where left off in the early winter.

National Guard Strength 161,129 Officers and Men

ACCORDING to the Militia Bureau of the War Department the total aggregate strength of the National Guard as of Jan. 31 was 161,129 officers and men. A considerable number of these troops are composed of divisional troops.

Following shows the composition of the various troops:

Divisional, 110,969; corps, 12,860; Cavalry division, 12,022; Army, 2,503; G.H. Q., 1,456; C.A.C., 6,934; Infantry, 13,343; staff, 1,042; total, 161,129.

Radical Element Threatens Washington N.G.

DISPATCHES from the state of Washington state that the radical element in that section of the country have brought such pressure to bear upon the state legislature, that should the appropriations be passed as now framed, practically all of the rented armories in the state will have to be given up, and half of the enlisted strength of the Washington National Guard will have to be dropped from the rolls. National defense advocates residing in the state are greatly aroused over this deliberate attempt of the pacifists and I.W.W.'s to destroy the National Guard of the state, and are bending all efforts to combat this propaganda in the control of a radical minority.

Other avenues of information bring in reports that the clear thinking people of the state have finally become interested in the proposed vicious legislative features, and the hope is expressed that the national defense advocates will win out.

National Guard Notes

THE 71st Infantry, N.Y.N.G., Col. J. H. Wells, was reviewed in its armory in New York city Feb. 6 by Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, before a large audience. The command made a fine showing.

The 165th, N.Y.N.G. (old 69th), Col. John J. Phelan, will be reviewed in its armory in New York city by Governor Smith on Friday night, Feb. 23.

COL. JOHN G. SALSAMAN, who was assistant adjutant general of the Wisconsin National Guard from July 1, 1901, up to the time he joined the 32d Division in 1917 as assistant division adjutant, has been appointed temporary adjutant general of Wisconsin. Since the war he has had charge of the Service Recognition Board, a part of the Adjutant General's office.

THE Veteran Association of the 12th Infantry, N.Y.N.G., will hold an entertainment on Tuesday evening, Feb. 20, at Palm Garden, East 58th street, near 3d avenue, New York city, and the committee has promised an excellent program with dancing after the show. The following have been elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Sgt. John Long; first vice president, Sgt. Harry Bruce; second vice president, Maj. Howland Pell; secretary, Lt. A. J. Wenk; treasurer, Lt. A. G. Menzies; financial secretary, Sgt. Joseph Domidion; corresponding secretary, Lt. John S. Adair; sergeant-at-arms, Sgt. Harry Hicks; chaplain, Rev. Maj. J. N. Connolly.

A REVIEW of the 212th Artillery, N.Y. N.G., Col. N. B. Burr, by Hon. Murray Hubert, president of the Board of Aldermen of the city of New York, was held in the armory on Feb. 9. A large audience was present, and the event was highly successful.

THE 1st Battalion of the 159th Infantry, California N.G., was reviewed on Jan. 30 by Col. E. R. Sirmyer and Col. David R. Barrows, commanding the 159th. Following the review, Col. Sirmyer gave an interesting talk to the officers of the battalion.

Missing Army Officers Dropped from Army Rolls

AN ANNOUNCEMENT was made at the War Department this week that the names of Col. F. C. Marshall, Cav., U.S. A., and 1st Lt. Charles L. Webber, Air Ser., U.S.A., have been dropped from the rolls of the Army as of Feb. 9, 1923, all trace of them having been lost after an airplane flight. On Dec. 7 Col. Marshall left Rockwell Field, Calif., on an inspection tour with Lt. Webber, who piloted the plane, for Tucson, Ariz. The two officers never reached their destination and have not been seen or heard from since. A thorough search for the missing flyers not only by the Air Service but by Cavalry failed to reveal the fate of the two officers. There were reports that the wrecked plane with the bodies, evidently destroyed by fire, had been seen by cowboys near Covered Wells and by Indians near Indian Oasis, both places some seventy miles west of Tucson on the Papago Indian Reservation, but these proved baseless.

The board which was appointed to make an investigation of the case has decided that the two officers met their death on or about Dec. 7, 1922, between Rockwell Field, Calif., and Fort Huachuca, Ariz., as the result of an airplane accident. The findings of the board have been approved by the Secretary of War.

Mrs. Marshall, Col. Marshall's widow, is now with her sister, Mrs. George S. Simonds, at Washington Barracks, D.C. Memorial services for the two officers will be held at the chapel at Washington Barracks at 4:30 p.m., Feb. 28.

THE Chief of Ordnance, U.S.A., in a letter dated Jan. 28, relating to defective ammunition, says: "Cartridges, 12 gauge, green, for 3-inch Stokes trench mortar shell, Winchester Lot No. 1 [not No. 3 as was incorrectly printed in the issue of Feb. 10] have become unserviceable because of deterioration. All cartridges of this lot will be withdrawn from the Service and destroyed."

Carabao Order in Annual Wallow

PERHAPS the most notable incident of the Washington Wallow of the Carabao on Feb. 10 was the retirement of the Bomberino "without pay." The announcement of the disappearance of this important functionary of the Carabao dinners, who was wont to lead the herd to water, was made by the Grand Paramount Carabao when he assumed the duties of his office. He said that it was done in the interest of economy, but there are well founded reports that there were other reasons for this action growing out of the adoption of a certain amendment to the constitution.

But Gen. Bandholtz succeeded in keeping up the interest of the herd in the occasion, and it can be said that, although the demise of the Bomberino was mourned, he was not missed. The songbirds were there as usual with a number of selections "written especially for the occasion," as well as the old-time Carabao warbles. "You Grand Old Carabao" was sung with the same fervor as of old when Gen. McIntyre conferred the insignia of the office of Paramount Carabao to his successor, Gen. Bandholtz. From this time on the Carabaoes were either singing or listening to speeches.

Col. Thomas S. Crago, member of Congress from Pennsylvania and one of the old-time Carabaoes, was the first speaker of the occasion. He not only recited some of the incidents of the Islands, praising the old order of the Army, but declared that during the World War the United States laid the foundation for one of the greatest military establishments of all time. He went on to say that the new military policy would not be a success without popular support, and that a campaign of education was necessary to make the new military policy effective.

Senator-elect Greene of Vermont, who throughout his service in the lower House has been a staunch supporter of preparedness, as usual made some telling points in responding to a call for a speech. He called attention to the fact that more than ever the unsettled conditions of the world demanded an adequate Army. He stated frankly that some of the European nations might find it easier to fight again than to pay their debts.

"There are many persons," he said, "who are trying to put in the mouths of the men who lived and fought and suffered through the World War the statement that victory in war had brought about a change in the old ideas of the United States."

"But after all, what did we go to war for? We went to war to keep somebody else from coming over here to change our ideas. There has been no real change in fundamentals, and there is no fourth dimension in morals that the world hasn't known before."

Maj. Gen. John T. Hines, U.S.A., Deputy Chief of Staff, demonstrated that he was a highly entertaining after-dinner speaker in response to a call from the Paramount Carabao. He related some very amusing stories of the mobilization of the little Army in the Spanish-American War. He told for the first time how he had stolen a train that was intended for the Rough Riders.

The success of the affair was due largely to the untiring efforts of the general committee, composed of Col. James A. Moss, U.S.A., chairman; Col. Henry C. Bonnycastle and John R. M. Taylor, U.S. A.; Capt. Victor S. Jackson, U.S.N.; Lt. Col. Hugh Matthews, U.S.M.C.; Cdr. Frederick L. Benton, U.S.N.; Maj. Resolve P. Palmer, U.S.A.; Capt. George R. Grau, ex-emergency; Capt. Walton R. Sexton and David M. Addison, U.S.N.; Lt. Col. Herbert L. Evans, Maj. William L. Patterson and Maj. Fred W. Boschen, U.S. A.; Col. Joseph M. Heller, M.O.R.C.

Among the guests were Senator Pat Harrison, U.S. Senate; Col. J. Mayhew Wainwright, Assistant Secretary of War; Maj. Gen. John T. Hines, Maj. Gen. Charles F. Humphrey, Maj. Gen. H. P. McCain, Maj. Gen. Robert C. Davis, all U.S.A.; Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, Maj. Gen. Edgar Russell and Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, U.S.A.; Rear Adm. Marbury Johnston, Capt. D. M. Addison, Chauncey Shackford, Walton R. Sexton, Raymond Spear, all U.S.N.; Col. John R. M. Taylor, U.S. A.; Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell; Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz, Maj. Gen. Frank MacIntyre, Col. O. W. Bell and W. C. Brown, all U.S.A.; Capt. A. W. Dunbar, U.S.N.; Lt. William T. Davis; Capt. Geo. C. Day, U.S.N.; Hon. Ray G. Fitzgerald, M.C.; Capt. E. C. Kalbfus and Edgar B. Lorimer, U.S.N.; Col. Robert W. Leonard; Hon. J. F. Miller, M.C.; Hon. Miles Poindexter, U.S. Senate; Col. Frederick P. Reynolds, U.S.A.

PAY OF RETIRED OFFICERS.

TO THE EDITOR:

"PRIOR to June 30, 1921," (see your editorial page Feb. 3, 1923, number), page 553, c.s., second column, on "Army Retirement." "Let them bring the pay of the officers retired prior to June 30, 1921," up to the same level as those retired subsequently."

Is not "1921" a misprint—did you not intend "1922"?

RETIRED.

Answer: June 30, 1922, was intended, as the pay provisions of the act of June 10, 1922, were effective from July 1, 1922.

ANOTHER PLEA FOR BLUES.

TO THE EDITOR:

THE sentiment in the Field Artillery School is for the immediate return of the blue uniform for dress and evening wear. At the present time every officer has a special O.D. uniform set aside that he keeps for evening wear. This uniform might as well be blue as O.D. and the average price for blue would not be much higher than the O.D.

The Navy has blue, so has the Marine Corps; so has the army and navy of every civilized nation in the world.

Pride and fighting ability go hand in hand. Give us a uniform that we can be proud of.

FIELD OFFICER, U.S.A.

INSURANCE AND FLYING CASUALTIES.

TO THE EDITOR:

I HAVE just received the circular on the subject of the proposed amendment of the constitution of the Army Mutual Aid Association in connection with flying casualties.

I am not in the Air Service, never have been, and never expect to be, but I have voted "No" on this amendment and hope all other members will do the same.

As a Cavalryman I feel that such a step might well be followed by one reducing death benefits for deaths due to horse accidents, or an increased premium for indulging in mounted sports or duty.

This association is the Army Mutual Aid Association.

The Air Service is a part of the Army and (I believe) a most necessary part. Moreover I believe that every Army officer should do some flying. No officer is competent to pass judgment on the work and hazards of the Air Service unless he has flown.

I have made flights aggregating about 1,100 miles. Due to family objections I do not expect to fly any more unless I consider it highly advantageous to some mission assigned me. But if I consider that my mission will be better accomplished by a survey of the situation from the air I do not wish to be hampered by the thought that in case of accident my insurance is going to be cut in two.

It is bad enough that Air Service officers have so many casualties without our making it harder for them. They are brother officers. Let us treat them as such.

"PEGASUS."

WANTS BLUE DRESS UNIFORM.

TO THE EDITOR:

AS a Reserve officer who saw pre-war service in the Regular Army, I feel that I regard the question of dress uniforms from perhaps a broader viewpoint than that of the average Reservist. To my mind, the plan to defer the reintroduction of "blues" until such a time as they will meet the approval of the majority of (Guard and) Reserve officers is not based on sound logic.

Being a soldier is the business of a Regular Army officer; it is very much an avocation with the Reservist. The Regular officer is, or should be, proud of the fact that he has chosen arms as a profession, proud of his uniform, and glad to be seen in it. But he cannot feel comfortable in it unless it is suitable to the occasion, and olive drab, no matter how artfully tailored or recently pressed, is not suitable to all occasions.

You cannot expect any Army officer to attend, in olive drab, an entertainment where he will meet officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, as well as those of other nations, in full dress and feel at ease. Rather will he don civil garb and thereby lose that which primarily distinguishes him as a fighting man.

Olive drab is the soldier's working garb. As I recall it, "blues" were prescribed by Secretary Baker in the interests of "efficiency, simplicity and economy." It would have been equally in the interest of these cardinal virtues had an order gone forth directing all workmen in government employ to wear "overalls at all times," and all office employees (from the Secretary down) to wear a "sack suit at all times." But civilians have rights, and soldiers have none, so such orders were not brought forth.

The Reservist has his play clothes—which are civil in cut. The very large majority of Reserve officers now, and ten years from now, will be unalterably opposed to buying a blue uniform or uniforms. To force the Regular officer to do without his dress clothes until such a time as the majority of Reservists desire them is to banish dress uniforms utterly and forever, and to foist upon the Regular Service just one more of the long succession of injustices of which it always has been, and always will be, the victim.

Bring back the blues—for the Regular Service and National Guard. They will give the Regulars greater self-respect, and they will increase recruiting in the Guard by 20 per cent., for the buck private likes to make a good appearance just as much as any man living, and the soldier ought to be allowed to have his changes of (military) dress as well as the civilian.

FOR ENLISTED DISABILITY RETIREMENT.

TO THE EDITOR:

IT appears to Service people that the Secretary of War's disapproval of the 25-Year Retirement bill for enlisted men has sounded the death knell to that piece of legislation.

There is a class of men in the Service which, I believe, deserves greater protection than is offered by the present law. This class is made up of men who become disabled in the Service. At present if an enlisted man becomes disabled he is given a discharge on "Surgeon's Certificate of Disability" and left to fight his battle with another bureau of the Government, cut loose entirely from the War Department, and quite often the amount of compensation awarded is far too small even to afford partial relief.

I would submit the following as a substitute for the 25-Year Retirement bill:

All enlisted men of the U.S. Army who have completed fifteen years' service in any of the six Services mentioned in the National Defense act, and all non-commissioned officers of the first three grades regardless of length of service, may, when disabled, if such disability is not the result of their own misconduct, be placed on the retired list with three-fourths of the pay and allowances to which they were entitled before such disability occurred.

ARMY NURSES' RETIREMENT BILL.

TO THE EDITOR:

IN the readjustment of the retirement laws, will the Nurses' twenty-year retirement bill be forgotten?

The service of the nurse in the Army is but little understood. Duty consists of an eight-hour day, in emergencies twelve and fourteen, with no Saturday afternoon, Sunday or national holiday off duty, because the care of the sick must go on. Night duty means twelve hours each night for one month out of every three months, excepting charge and special duty nurses, who are required to do not oftener than one month out of six night duty. The nurse stands ever ready when ordered for duty at any post, camp or general hospital, no matter how isolated.

A nurse's service during twenty years equals, if it does not exceed, the thirty years required of the officers and enlisted men before being retired. After such service, then what may an Army nurse look forward to? No provision for old age or disability, unless she is able to save enough from her salary to suffice, and the majority of the nurses are helping to support parents or other relatives and educating other members of their families in order that they may be good citizens. It has been stated that, "A nurse in active service is good for ten years only," because of the exigencies, character and quality of her profession.

Will the gentlemen of the present Congress see the justice of this plea for retirement after twenty years' service for the Army nurses if the measure is brought forward during the readjustment of retirement laws for the six Services pending? "Hope deferred makes the heart sick." We nurses think they will pass the bill, and are hoping for the day to come when worry for old age or disability is a thing of the past.

Favors One Commission
in Army of United States

JUST before adjourning the National Guard Board formulated its recommendations for the issue of one commission in the Army of the United States. These recommendations will be submitted to the General Staff and the Judge Advocate General's Department. The 'Reserve Officers' Board, now in session in the War Department, will make similar recommendations before it adjourns and the Secretary of War will make an effort to harmonize the recommendations of the two boards.

That the National Guard officers are deeply interested in this subject is evidenced by the resolution which was passed at the Indianapolis convention of the National Guard Association. It is recognized both in the War Department and in the resolutions passed by the National Guard Association that legislation on this subject cannot be secured at this session. At first blush it would appear that it would be a very simple proposition, but a study of the National Defense act reveals that there are some very nice questions involved. It has therefore been decided to give more time and consideration to the subject and present a bill at the next session of Congress.

Detroit Board of Commerce
Supports Reserve Forces

THE Detroit Board of Commerce with a membership of 7,000 of the leading business and professional men of Detroit passed a resolution on Feb. 8 strongly urging all Michigan Senators and Congressmen to support Senate Report No. 1063, War Department Appropriation Bill, Wadsworth report accompanying H.R. 13793. The resolution also said, in part, that the Detroit Board of Commerce believed that this bill has a vital bearing on the National Defense of the country, in that it provides for the proper maintenance of the Officers' Reserve Corps, for in time of war these officers will form the backbone of the Reserve Army.

Col. Sward, Maj. Stearns and Newberry, O.R.C., appeared before the directors of the Board of Commerce, and urged the adoption of the resolution, which has been sent to all Michigan Senators and Congressmen.

Another effort to save the Officers' Reserve Corps and the general structure of the Reserve Army is being made by the Reserve officers of the 5th Corps Area, as the result of a letter sent to them by Brig. Gen. L. R. Gignilliat, O.R.C., commander of the 159th Infantry Brigade and the executive committeeman for the 5th Corps Area of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States.

The letter declares the real defense of the country will be seriously weakened at this time, "when the world is in greater chaos and more active danger of an explosion than at any time since the armistice."

Gen. Gignilliat asks for a general protest from all intelligent and informed citizens against the "outrageous and utterly unjustifiable treatment of the Army." The cut in appropriations is termed a tragical piece of mis-legislation. Reserve officers will bring all possible pressure through protests by legion posts, chambers of commerce, churches and other patriotic organizations.

Reserve Officers' Club,
Kansas City, Hears Lectures

THE Reserve Officers' Club of Kansas

City has been holding a series of noon luncheons on alternate Fridays at the University Club, Kansas City, which are followed by a brief lecture serving to help officers keep in touch with current military thought.

The General Service Schools, Fort Leavenworth, Kas., prepared the course of lectures, each one complete but fitting into a connected series, and is furnishing the speakers, each one an eminent military authority. This opportunity to hear instructive lectures is offered through the courtesy of Brig. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commandant.

The remaining lectures on the schedule are as follows: Feb. 23, Col. L. Brown, chief, engineer section, "The Engineer Regiment"; March 9, Maj. P. H. Worcester, instructor, "Division Supply and Transportation"; March 23, Lt. Col. A. C. Voris, chief, signal section, "Signal Communication"; April 6, Maj. J. W. N. Schulz, instructor, "Chemicals in Warfare"; April 20, Col. E. E. Booth, director, the Correspondence School, "Military Training."

Interesting Books

TACTICAL Principles and Decisions.
Vol. I, Marches, Halts, Reconnaissances and Security. The Command and General Staff Schools, 1920. Revised Edition 1922. General Service Schools Press, Fort Leavenworth, Kas., 1922.

"A cursory reading of the text will prove of little benefit," says Assistant Commandant R. H. Allen, in the preface to this, the first of five volumes, which will deal with the subject matter covered in the course on "Tactical Principles and Decisions." This course is characterized as "one of the most important courses at The Command and General Staff School."

The book will prove of vital interest to all officers, of whatever rank, who will study it closely and sincerely.

Perhaps the first volume will prove of more value to officers of field rank and above, since the greater portion of it deals with the handling of regiments and divisions, but there are sections dealing with the principles governing marches and outpost security which will prove instructive to officers of lesser rank.

The first chapter deals with marches and includes a summary of the general principles governing all varieties of marches. Special attention is paid to the passage of defiles and to night marches. Halts and security are also treated, and the practicable application of all principles outlined is made by a thorough discussion of problems and their approved solutions.

The second chapter deals with the conduct of halts, the general principles governing them and the placing of a division in camp or billets. An inclusive problem and its solution are added.

The third chapter is given over to a discussion of reconnaissance and security, and is necessarily very wide in scope. It covers security on the march, the use of the advance guard and the utilization of Cavalry. These points are illustrated with a special problem, its discussion and solution.

Flank and rear guards are dealt with in the same manner, stressing the action of covering forces and the use of Artillery in rear guard action.

The book closes with a discussion of security at a halt, dealing with the placing and use of night outposts and march outposts.

Reserve Officers Visit
Philadelphia Navy Yard

ON the invitation of Rear Adm. L. M. Nulton, U.S.N., extended to the 79th Division, about sixty-five Reserve officers and division headquarters visited the Philadelphia Navy Yard on Feb. 7. The Navy aircraft factory was one of the especially interesting parts of the tour and there the officers were shown the details of construction as well as the stock of reserve airplanes. The drydocks and all the other activities of the yard were also visited.

305th Cavalry, O.R.C.,
Holds Monthly Luncheons

IT is proposed to hold a monthly luncheon for officers of the 305th Cavalry Regiment, O.R.C., at the roof garden of the Hotel Longacre, 1429 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa. The luncheon will be held on the following dates: Feb. 15, March 14, April 18, May 16 and June 14. Forty minutes will be devoted to eating and twenty minutes to a talk on a military subject by an officer of the regiment and a discussion of same by those present.

Peoria Chapter, Illinois O.R.C., a Live Organization

LT. COL. CHARLES B. SAYRE, P.A., O.R.C., Champaign, Ill., visited Peoria in connection with the organization of the 581st Field Artillery, Peoria, Ill., of which unit Col. Sayre is C.O. The officers of the regiment gave an informal dinner on that date in his honor at the Creve Coeur Club.

The Reserve Officers' Association assembled Feb. 6 for its usual meeting, and after completion of routine business proceeded to Holt Tractor Plant for an illustrated lecture on the use of tractors by Lt. Col. George B. Bacoek, executive of the plant, who was formerly supply officer, A.E.F. The membership committee reported thirty-six paid-up members to date.

AT the present time there are sixty-nine high school shooting teams of the R.O.T.C. units from all parts of the country entered in the 1923 competition for the $300 trophy presented by William Randolph Hearst, there being seventeen schools of the Chicago unit alone entered. All of the other large cities having units have entered teams and the rivalry is keen. The match closes on March 15. In addition to the trophy, Mr. Hearst gives a handsome medal to each member of the winning team. Col. Robert H. Sillman, officer in charge of R.O.T.C. affairs, headquarters, 6th Corps Area, Chicago, has the competition in charge and will be the judge of the result.

AS a result of a visit of Col. Frank M. Rumbold, G.S., to the University of Missouri, Col. William E. Persons, Inf., P.M.S. & T., recommended in a communication to the War Department that an officer from Washington make a monthly visit to that institution. Col. Persons declared that the visit of Col. Rumbold had done much to arouse the enthusiasm of the R.O.T.C., and in his opinion it should become an established policy of the War Department to send some officer at least once a month to the colleges.

Officers Elected by D. of C. Reservists

COL. LEROY HERRON, O.R.C., was elected president of the District of Columbia department, Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, at the annual meeting of the organization Feb. 3. Other officers elected were: Lt. Col. Ashby Williams, vice president, and Capt. R. E. B. McKenney, secretary-treasurer.

The above, together with the following, form the Executive Committee: Infantry section, Col. Glendie B. Young and Maj. E. Brooke Lee; Cavalry section, Capt. W. B. Howe; Military Intelligence section, Maj. Stanley K. Hornbeck and Capt. S. H. Briant; Adjutant General's section, Maj. W. Kyle and Capt. Spencer Jones; Judge Advocate General's section, Col. J. S. Casby-Smith; Quartermaster and Ordnance section, Lt. Col. I. Weil; Engineer section, Col. John Stewart and Maj. Roy Bessey, and Medical section, Lt. Col. Joseph H. Bryan and Maj. Clarence Dollman. The Artillery and Air Service sections are to elect their representatives on the Executive Committee at a later date.

Col. B. H. Wells, U.S.A., chief of the war plans division of the General Staff of the Army, delivered an address on the overseas defenses of the United States.

THE Omaha Bee of Sunday, Feb. 4, devotes the first page of its rotogravure section to the R.O.T.C. of Creighton University. On the page are photographs of Maj. C. S. Hoffman, P.M.S. & T., Capt. A. R. MacKechnie and James Wheelin, all Inf., U.S.A., and Lt. F. H. Gulgard, commandant at Central High School. Group pictures of the cadets take up the larger part of the page.

WHEN your feet feel like lead, when the sun boils down and the dust bakes your throat to a frazzle you'll wish you'd worn Fox's Spiral Puttees.

The preparation you make before maneuvers plays a large part in your condition at the end of the day. It's plain horse sense that heavy leather puttees and boots will not bring you home with feet that smile at the miles. It takes Fox's Spiral Puttees, light and iron-strong to bring joy to overburdened feet and legs. Fox's Puttees lie flat against the calf and never fray at the edges. ## Promotions and Retirements

BRIG. GEN. JOHN B. McDONALD, U. S.A., was retired for age Feb. 8, 1923, after a long record of distinguished service in many fields. He was awarded the D.S.C. and the D.S.M. by our Government, the Croix de Guerre (with palm) by France, the Croix de Guerre by Belgium and the War Cross by Italy. The Distinguished Service Cross citation follows: "For repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action near Epionville and Genes, France, Sept. 26-30, 1914. He was almost continuously present with the leading elements of his brigade, inspiring his troops by his personal bravery and energy under fire. Near Epionville, when his command was about to make an attack and was under heavy artillery fire, this officer by his disregard for personal safety steadied his men and stimulated them to successful assault on the ridge forming part of the German main line of defense. Two days later with one flank exposed by the withdrawal of the unit on the right, he led his brigade in the attack on and capture of Genes."

The Distinguished Service Medal citation says: "For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services while commanding the 181st Infantry Brigade during the advance of the 91st Division from Forêt de Hesse, Argonne, France, in September, 1918, he was instrumental in the success achieved. He directed the attack in person, and by his example of personal courage and by his sound tactical orders he so inspired his brigade that it was enabled to capture and hold a most important position."

General McDonald was born in Alabama Feb. 8, 1859, and was graduated from the U.S.M.A. in the class of 1881, when he was assigned to the 25th Infantry. He was transferred to the 10th Cavalry in 1882, and among his many duties he served in the Geronimo campaign in 1885, and was later on duty with Indian Scouts. He was with the 3d Cavalry in the field in the Philippines, where he was badly wounded in action. A number of superior officers officially attested the ability he displayed. Gen. Loyd Wheaton, in an official report made at Manila in April, 1901, paid special tribute to the gallantry of Gen. McDonald for his conduct in a fight at Barangobong, P.I. He was at that time captain in the 3d Cavalry.

Gen. Wheaton said: "Capt. J. B. McDonald, 3d Cav., twenty-one men on firing line, and one sergeant and six men left with horses, struck and defeated sixty insurgents with rifles and forty bolomen, under Tinio, in a stiff fight, in which he was severely wounded through the right lung. Capt. McDonald was wounded by the first volley, and is deserving of much credit in not permitting his men to know that he was hurt until after the fight, which lasted about twenty minutes, was over, thereby averting what might have been a less fortunate ending. The insurgents were on a high mountain with steep ascent. The troops made their fight after scaling this mountain. Capt. McDonald knew the strength of Tinio's command, but attacked him notwithstanding. His immediate commanding officer, in transmitting the report, remarks: "There is no braver soldier in the Service than Capt. McDonald."

COL. WALTER A. BETHEL, J.A.G., Dept., U.S.A., at present on duty in Washington, D.C., has been nominated for appointment as Judge Advocate General of the Army, with the rank of major general, to succeed Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, J.A.G., who has been retired at his own request to accept the appointment of Ambassador to Cuba. The nomination of Col. Bethel was sent to the Senate on Feb. 12. During the World War Gen. Bethel, with the grade of temporary brigadier general, was J.A. General of the A.E.F. The signing of the Armistice prevented favorable action on Gen. Pershing's recommendation that he be appointed a major general in recognition of his excellent services. Gen. Bethel was awarded the D.S.M. by our government and the Legion of Honor (commander) by France. The Distinguished Service Medal citation follows: "For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services. As Judge Advocate of the American Expeditionary Forces he organized this important department and administered its affairs with conspicuous efficiency from the date of the arrival in France of the first American combat troops. His marked legal ability and sound judgment were important factors in the splendid work of his department, and he at all times handled with success the various military and international problems that arose as a result of the operations of our armies." Gen. Bethel was born in Ohio, Nov. 25, 1866, and was appointed to the U.S.M.A. from Ohio, graduating in 1889. He served with the 3d and 4th Artillery regiments and in the Artillery Corps until 1908, when he was transferred to the Judge Advocate General's Department. Gen. Bethel has served, among his many important assignments, as judge advocate of the Department of Alaska, Luzon and California, as professor of law at the Military Academy, as instructor in law at the General Service Schools, and as president of the Board of Officers which revised the Manual of Courts-Martial. During the Spanish-American War Gen. Bethel, being then a second lieutenant, served as captain and acting Adjutant General of Volunteers. Gen. Bethel received the degree of LL.D. from the Atlanta Law School in 1892 and the degree of LL.M. from Columbia University in 1894.

MAJ. JOHN P. KELLY, U.S.A., formerly of the Medical Corps, who was retired from active service Dec. 31, 1922, for disability incident to the service, was born in Florida March 14, 1870, and was appointed in the Medical Corps of the Regular Army Aug. 20, 1917, as a first lieutenant. He had previously served as an officer in the Medical Section of the O.R.C. He was also appointed a captain and assistant surgeon of Volunteers in 1902, and entered the Medical Reserve Corps as a first lieutenant in 1908. Maj. Kelly holds the degree of M.D., University of Alabama, 1899. Under date of Washington, D.C., Jan. 30, 1923, Gen. John J. Pershing, U.S.A., sent the following letter to the major addressed to his home at 120 Ellis street, San Francisco, Calif.:

"My dear Maj. Kelly:
 "It is with regret that I note your retirement from active service on account of physical disability. I trust that being relieved from the exacting requirements of military service, you will fully regain your health, and good fortune will attend you in the new sphere of life which you have entered. Very sincerely yours,
 "JOHN J. PERSHING,
 "General of the Armies,
 "Chief of Staff."

MTR. SGT. LAZARUS STONE, 24th Inf., was placed on the retired list Jan. 24 at Fort Benning, Ga., after thirty years of faithful service and a regimental review was tendered him on that date in appreciation of his services. Col. Nicklin in regimental orders says, in part: "Mtr. Sgt. Stone entered the U.S. Army July 20, 1898. He has been a non-commissioned officer since Sept. 22, 1900. He was appointed master sergeant (personnel sergeant major, 24th Inf.) June 1, 1918, and was the first to have the distinction of holding that position in the regiment, having been appointed to it when it was created in 1918. Mtr. Sgt. Stone participated in engagements during the Philippine Insurrection, Aug. 1, 1899, to April 14, 1902. He later took part in the Punitive Expedition in Mexico. In action against Villistas, Juarez, Mexico, June 15 and 16, 1919."

MTR. SGT. FRANCIS H. SWEET, 16th U.S. Inf., was retired from active service Jan. 23, 1923, at Fort Jay, N. Y., after more than thirty years' service. Sgt. Sweet first enlisted April 11, 1899, and has served continuously since that date in the 3d Artillery, Coast Artillery, 15th Infantry and 22d Infantry. He also served as captain in the Q.M. Corps for over three years, and in the 16th Infantry. All of his discharges show excellent character and in every case he was discharged as a N.C.O. Sgt. Sweet was in the field against hostile insurgents, 1899-1900.

FIRST SGT. FRANKLIN B. SCOTT, 8th Cav., was placed on the retired list at Fort Bliss, Texas, Jan. 23, after completing thirty years' service, including double time in Cuba and the Philippines. First Sgt. Scott first enlisted in the Regular Army in the 8th Cavalry June 8, 1899. He enlisted Dec. 22, 1913, in the 10th Recruiting Co. at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, where he served until Feb. 14, 1920, when he went back to the 8th Cavalry. All of 1st Sgt. Scott's discharges show character "Excellent" and his entire service has been of the highest and most loyal nature.

SGT. JAMES C. LATIMER, Field Art., School Detachment (colored), was retired from active service at Fort Sill, Okla., Jan. 30, 1923, after having completed twenty-four years' service, with a credit of six years, ten months and twenty-nine days double time for retirement. Sgt. Latimer entered the Regular Army in the 24th Infantry Aug. 11, 1898. Sgt. Latimer is a veteran of the Spanish American War and Philippine Insurrection. He was a member of the battalion which was commanded by Capt. Joseph Bachele and which suffered many hardships. In one engagement the men fought until their ammunition supply was practically exhausted, but were fortunate enough to find their way to the China Sea, where they were picked up by the gunboat Helena. Sgt. Latimer has five discharges with character "very good" and three with character "excellent."

SGT. JOHN W. McPHAIL, 30th Inf., U.S.A., was retired from active service Jan. 30, 1923, at Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., after thirty years of honorable and faithful service. All his discharges bear "character excellent." He served during the war with Spain in the 2d and 1st Texas Volunteer Infantry. He first enlisted in the Regular Army Sept. 10, 1899, in the 44th Infantry and subsequently served in the 2d and 16th Infantry, U.S. Disciplinary Barracks Guards, Q.M. Corps and 30th Infantry. He also served as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Guards during the World War. Sgt. McPhail served in Cuba during the Spanish-American War; in the Philippine Islands, 1900-1901, during which time he was credited with having participated in four skirmishes and battle engagements; served in Philippine Islands 1902 to 1903; served in Alaska, 1910-1912, and was commissioned as a first lieutenant during the World War.

FIRST-CLASS PVT. ALBERT SCOTT, Inf., U.S.A., who has served also in the grades of corporal, sergeant, first sergeant and during the World War as a temporary major, was placed on the retired list at Fort Logan, Colo., on Feb. 8, with the rank of private first class, after an excellent record of service of thirty years. In announcing his retirement Lt. Col. William S. Mapes, U.S.A., commanding at Fort Logan, in G.O. dated Feb. 8, says: "The post commander desires to take advantage of this opportunity to congratulate Pvt. 1st Class Scott upon his merited reward, due after thirty years of faithful and efficient service. Attention is particularly invited to the fact that the character given Pvt. 1st Class Scott upon all of his eight recorded discharges has been invariably 'Excellent,' a record of which any soldier may be justly proud. In wishing Pvt. 1st Class Scott a happy and prosperous future the post commander believes himself to be expressing the sentiment of the entire garrison, officers and enlisted men." In honor of Pvt. Scott's service his company gave him a banquet just before he left for his home in Douglas, Ariz. Under the conditions of his retirement he will receive pay and allowances from the government of only $48 a month. Retirement after his service in the grade of first sergeant or lieutenant, as might have been expected had the retrenchment policy of Congress not been inaugurated, would have provided a monthly pay rate of about $133.

RIVERS.

An officer who served under the late Col. Tyree R. Rivers, Cav., U.S.A., whose death at Governors Island, N.Y., was noted in the issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of Feb. 3, says, in part: "Col. Rivers, although unrecognized as his service was by badge or decoration left, however, an indelible impression on the lives of those who served under him. I have often wished that his last words to the officers at Camp Meade might be broadcast through every Army post, every school and college in the country. His transfer from our brigade brought forth a genuine regret from all ranks and he said, in passing:

"The esteem, respect and confidence of one's associates is, after all, the highest reward in life and if I have, through my personality and through my being human, exercised one-half the good influence that you attribute to me—I am content."

"Col. Rivers showed us the germ of life and I, for one, would see his memory live that all the world might rise up and say: Wars. He resigned from the Regular Army in 1899. As a young man he served as a cadet at the U.S. Naval Academy, 1871-2.

SEYBURN.

Col. Stephen Y. Seyburn, who served in Indian campaigns under Gens. Miles, Custer and Crook, died at his home, 7800 East Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Mich., Feb. 11 in his 65th year. Seyburn was director of the Wayne County and Home Savings Bank, trustee of the Wesson estate, and a director of the East Detroit Development Co. He was a member of the Metropolitan Club, Washington, D.C., Detroit Athletic Club, Country Club, Yonkote, Detroit Boat Club, Grosse Pointe Riding and Hunt Club, Bloomfield Hills Country Club, Bankers' Club, Board of Commerce, Fontinalis Club, M.O.L.L.U.S., Naval and Military Order of Spanish-American War, Order of Indian Wars of the United States and Society of Foreign Wars.

SMITH.

Capt. Edward Martin Smith, Field Art., U.S.A., retired, aged thirty years, was killed in an automobile accident Feb. 3, near Memphis, Texas, en route to Houston to join his wife and baby. Capt. Smith served overseas with the 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division. He was attached for a short time to a British battery and then rejoined the 7th Field Artillery as battery commander and regimental operations officer. Capt. Smith served throughout the Cantigny offensive, the Montdidier-Noyen defensive and Soissons offensive campaigns and was cited in orders for exceptional bravery and efficiency. After the war Capt. Smith was placed on duty as instructor at Fort Sill, Okla. He was next stationed at Camp Taylor and later at Camp Knox, Ky., then was made an instructor at the Field Artillery Basic School at Camp Knox. From there he was ordered to Fort Collins, Colo., to instruct in military science and tactics at the Coast Artillery Corps. Capt. Smith was recently retired for physical disability, which was due to his having been gassed three times in action. Funeral services were held at the Settegast-Kapp Undertaking Chapel, Houston, Rev. Charles C. Clingman officiating. The body was then escorted to San Antonio for burial. Tuesday, Feb. 6, a military funeral was held at the National Cemetery, Fort Sam Houston. Capt. William L. Fisher, chaplain of the 15th Field Artillery, conducting the services. Battery A of the 15th Field Artillery officiated at the cemetery. Capt. Smith is survived by his wife, Mary Gilman, his infant daughter, Anne Cavary, his mother, two brothers and two sisters of Seattle, Wash.

SMITHEE.

Maj. Robert G. Smither, U.S.A., retired, a veteran of the Civil and Indian Wars, died at the Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 13. He was born in Indiana Sept. 27, 1846, and served in the Volunteers in the Civil War from July 28, 1861, until honorably mustered out on Feb. 18, 1866. During that period he served as a private in the 26th Indiana Infantry, as a private and first sergeant of the 7th and 107th Indiana Cavalry, and as a second and first lieutenant of the 7th Indiana Cavalry. He served with the Army of the Tennessee, and was wounded in the battle of Okoloma, Miss. Maj. Smither entered the Regular Army July 18, 1867, as a first lieutenant, 10th Cavalry. He was retired for disability incident to the service May 10, 1888. Among other duties while on the active list of the Regular Army he served in Kansas, Colorado, Indian Territory, Texas and Arizona.

James Dean, 4th U.S. Inf., and leaves two children, Mrs. Cameron, the wife of Col. George H. Cameron, Cav., U.S.A., and Lt. Col. J. D. Tilford, retired, U.S.A., and four grandchildren, Mrs. Thompson, the wife of Maj. John B. Thompson, Cav., U.S.A., and Mrs. Creel, the wife of Capt. Buckner Creel, Cav., U.S.A.; James Dean and Martha Ferguson Tilford, children of Col. and Mrs. J. D. Tilford; and two great-granddaughters, Jaquelin Cameron, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Thompson, and Margaret Cameron, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Creel. Mrs. Tilford was a member of the Colonial Dames and a real daughter of 1812. The death of Mrs. Tilford will be deeply regretted by many of the old Army.

VOGDES.

Brig. Gen. Anthony W. Vogdes, U.S.A., retired, a well known officer and a Civil War veteran, died at San Diego, Calif., Feb. 7. He was born in New York April 23, 1843, and served during the Civil War as a lieutenant in the 100th New York Infantry, from August, 1863, to Aug. 28, 1865. He entered the Regular Army as a second lieutenant, 4th Infantry, in May, 1866. He was transferred to the 6th Artillery in May, 1875. He reached the grade of colonel in 1903, and was retired in 1904 with the rank of brigadier general.

Gen. Vogdes had resided in San Diego for more than sixteen years, locating there shortly after his retirement. He was active in many learned societies and had written numerous bulletins and papers on scientific subjects. He was a Fellow of the American Geological Society, a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the New York, Georgia, Philadelphia, Chicago and California Academies of Science, and head of the San Diego branch of that organization. The funeral of Gen. Vogdes was held at San Diego Feb. 10, the services being conducted by Rev. Howard B. Bord, pastor of the First Unitarian Church. Interment was made in San Francisco.

Engagements

Engagement notices must be signed by sender

The engagement of Miss Tommie Simpson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Simpson, to Lt. Wesley W. Yale, 7th Cav., was announced at a dinner party given by Mrs. Ethel Walker on Feb. 3 at her ranch home at Maria, Texas. A huge log fire welcomed the guests as they entered the dining room. The table was beautifully decorated with yellow maline and yellow candles, having a mistletoe bordered sunken garden in the center on which small white ducks were swimming. Hand-painted pictures symbolic of the lives of the guests were used as place cards. The favors were what seemed to be apples with a miniature firecracker in each one. When the firecracker was lit and the apple opened it was found to contain the announcement of the engagement. The dinner was followed by four tables of bridge. The guests included Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Simpson, Judge and Mrs. Boyle, Rev. and Mrs. L. M. Johnson, Capt. Randolph Russell, 7th Cav., and Mrs. Russell, Miss Tommie Simpson and Lt. Wesley W. Yale. ## G.O. 3, JAN. 18, 1923, 3d Corps Area.

1. There is a widespread feeling that many staff officers do not know how far it is proper for them to go in the matter of using their commander's name when issuing orders and instructions. This is not only embarrassing at times, but also on account of the innocent misuse of authority on the part of staff officers leads to dissatisfaction in commands because matters that should be brought to the personal attention of commanders are through misconception of their authority handled directly by subordinates acting not only improperly but illegally.

2. The cause is undoubtedly due to the fact that so far as is known the exact authority of subordinates to issue instructions in the name of a commander is nowhere defined in an authoritative manner. To remedy this, so far as practicable in this corps area, the following instructions are published for the guidance of all concerned:

The authority of staff officers to issue orders and instructions in the name of a commander extends to the following cases, and to them only:

(a) Where a commander has given certain specific instructions to a staff officer, the actual issue of the orders or instructions to members of the command will properly be done, in the name of the commander, by the proper staff officer, verbally or over his own signature.

(b) Where a commander has decided upon a policy to be followed, and has indicated that policy to a staff officer, all future questions that fall fully under such policy should, without further reference to the commander, be decided by the proper staff officer, verbally or over his own signature and in the name of his commander, in accordance with the commander's indicated policy. Where appeals from such decisions are made they should, except in cases of emergency, be submitted for further consideration of the commander.

(c) Where a commander has specified an object to be attained, or has outlined a plan for the attainment of an object, all detailed orders and instructions necessary to give effect to the commander's decision may be given in the commander's name by the proper staff officer, verbally or over his own signature, and without further reference to the commander.

By command of Maj. Gen. Muir:

FRANK S. COCHRAN, Chief of Staff.

Sport

ATHLETICS AT CAMP VAIL.

A CAMP series in basketball has just been finished at Camp Alfred Vail, N. J. There were six teams competing, Co. A, 51st Signal Battalion, Signal Corps, winning the championship. That company was presented with a beautiful cup given by A. G. Spalding & Bros. A bowling tournament is now being played. Feb. 21 the camp eliminations for boxing and wrestling will be started. Each company will enter a man in each weight. The winners will, of course, enter the corps area championship.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE A.A.

AT the seventeenth annual conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at the Hotel Astor, New York city, recently, the following officers for 1923 were elected:

President, Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, 26 Broadway, New York city; vice president, Dean S. W. Beyer, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa; secretary-treasurer, Dean Frank W. Nicholson, Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn. Council—1st district, Prof. C. W. Mendell, Yale University; 2d district, Prof. H. N. Lendall, Rutgers College; 3d district, Director H. C. Byrd, University of Maryland; 4th district, Dr. S. V. Sanford, University of Georgia; 5th district, Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, University of Michigan; 6th district, Prof. M. F. Ahern, Kansas State Agricultural College; 7th district, Prof. D. A. Penick, University of Texas; 8th district, Dean G. C. Manly, University of Denver; 9th district, Prof. L. J. Ayer, University of Washington.

U.S.N.A. GAMES AWAY FROM HOME.

NORTHERN and Southern limits of the area heretofore covered by Naval Academy athletic teams will be passed this spring. The wrestling and lacrosse teams will travel North, the former meeting Cornell at Ithaca on March 17 and the latter Syracuse University at Syracuse on May 19. For the first time in the history of the Naval Academy the baseball nine will have a southern trip. It will play the University of North Carolina at Raleigh, March 30, and oppose the University of Richmond at Richmond the next day.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY FORMS ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

THE U.S. Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association was established at New London, Conn., Jan. 18. The object of this association is to promote athletic sports at the academy. There are at present sixty-one cadets under instruction and it is hoped the cadet corps will be increased by the forthcoming examination.

MAJOR WILDRICK GOLF STAR.

BY winning the first two tournaments of the New Year, held by the Oahu Country Club, Honolulu, Maj. M. Wildrick, C.A.C., is leading the large field of Service and civilian golf enthusiasts at the Nuana Links. Scoring a 73 in a novelty tournament on New Year's Day, in which play was in general from the eighteenth to the first hole, Maj. Wildrick netted a 63, having at this time a handicap of 15. The games committee promptly reduced his handicap to 12, but by scoring a 76 the following week he also won the first monthly tournament by a net 64. About thirty Army officers are members of the Oahu Country Club.

FORT SAM HOUSTON POLO.

WITH the consolidation of Camp Travis and Fort Sam Houston, the polo prospects become brighter. The following organizations of the post have teams: 2d Division, 4th Cavalry, 12th Field Artillery, 15th Field Artillery, 4th Field Artillery, 1st Infantry, 20th Infantry, 3d Infantry Brigade. The 8th Corps Area headquarters team is also virtually of the post. In addition to these teams the San Antonio Polo Club and Kelly Field have strong teams. There are three playing fields in Fort Sam Houston and a practice field; one civilian field and one at Kelly Field. Capt. Joseph S. Tate, Cav., polo representative, has been made representative of Fort Sam Houston.

ATTENTION, STRONG MEN!

WHO are the strongest men of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps? I wish to announce on behalf of my partner and myself, that we are open to meet any man individually of Uncle Sam's fighting forces in an all around test of strength, barring none. Soldier Jackson weighing 160 pounds, will meet any man in the U.S. Army, regardless of weight. Soldier White, formerly the human energy advertisement of the U.S. Navy, weighing 140 pounds, will meet any man of the Navy or Marine Corps, regardless of weight. Address challenges to Soldier White, headquarters 1st Tank Group, Camp Meade, Md.

New Scout Cruisers Assigned to Atlantic

WITH Capt. David C. Haurahan, U.S.N., in command of the Omaha, the first of the new scout cruisers will be placed in commission on March 1. After she has been shaken down the Omaha will be sent from Seattle to the Atlantic to join the scouting fleet. All of the ten new scout cruisers will be stationed in the Atlantic. They will form the backbone of the scouting fleet and make a very formidable force.

Every year with the other units of the fleet in the Atlantic they will be mobilized with the battle fleet which is stationed in the Pacific. It is expected that the new scout cruisers will all join the scouting fleet this year.

Navy Notes

IT has been reported to the Bureau of Navigation that Honorable Discharge Blank No. B7423 has been stolen from the U.S. Naval Radio Station, Bar Harbor, Me. All stations are ordered by the Bureau of Navigation to take precautions to apprehend any man endeavoring to re-enlist with the above numbered honorable discharge.

REAR ADM. M. M. TAYLOR, U.S.N., who has recently been relieved from the command of the 15th Naval District at Panama, may be assigned to command the Submarine Force. Adm. Taylor is now at Washington awaiting orders, and it is said that this plan is under consideration in the Navy Department. With the development of the submarines and the enlargement of the force, it is being urged that a flag officer is to be placed in command.

SIXTEEN of the eighteen Navy Scout planes arrived at Colon, Panama, on Feb. 13, the remaining two making their appearance the next day. The entire squadron will participate in the winter maneuvers of the United States Fleet. The U.S.S. Mississippi will fire on the radio controlled U.S.S. Iowa while the naval planes will spot and scout for this firing. On the completion of these war games, the squadron will return to Guantanamo, where in conjunction with the Atlantic force of warships regular target practice will be held, the planes also performing spot and scout work during the target practice. On the completion of this work, the entire squadron will return to Hampton Roads, which will be sometime the latter part of April.

WEST POINT.

West Point, N.Y., Feb. 14, 1923.

The visit of the British polo players to West Point was a distinct event enjoyed by all the polo enthusiasts of the post. The visiting team, composed of Mr. Egan, Capt. Holman, McMullin and Walford, was accompanied by Maj. De Russy Hoyle, who has been detailed to go with the British officers on their tour through the country. Two games were played in the Riding Hall, one with the cadet team on Saturday afternoon and one with the officer team on Sunday afternoon. ## Fifty Years Ago this Man Learned the "Secret" of Successful Investing

Francis H. Smith: 1829-1906
Founder of The F. H. Smith Company

IN 1848 Francis H. Smith, then a youth of 19, set out barefoot from a farm near Washington, Conn., his birthplace, to walk to Washington, D. C. Twenty-five years later, at the age of 44, he founded the investment business that became one of the most important factors in the financial life of the Nation's Capital.

During the years when Washington was changing from a straggling, overgrown village to one of the wonder cities of the world, F. H. Smith was in intimate association with the Government officials who were responsible for this transformation. He knew Alexander R. Shepherd, to whom President Grant had entrusted the management of the City of Washington; he knew Grant, Garfield, Blaine, McKinley and the other outstanding figures of that period.

F. H. Smith not only witnessed the transformation of the Nation's Capital, but helped to bring that transformation about. He became a pioneer in the real estate loan and investment business. He saw that Washington was a city of constantly increasing real estate values. He saw that this would give First Mortgage investors a constantly increasing margin of safety.

What F. H. Smith learned in those years of Washington's transformation was the secret of investment success—a success which was shared by every man and woman and every financial institution that came to him for first mortgage investments, with the result that the house which he founded has today a record of half a century without loss to any investor.

Washington, the seat of Government, the Mecca of patriotic tourists, the city of splendid buildings and countless memorials, is a bulwark of safety to conservative investors. It is the one city in America which has back of it the tremendous power of the United States Government in improvement and development. It is now, as it was 50 years ago, a city of constantly increasing real estate values.

The man or woman who invests in First Mortgages strongly secured by new buildings located where real estate values are constantly increasing has learned the secret of successful investment.

Let us send you a free copy of our Golden Anniversary booklet. It contains the illustrated story of F. H. Smith's remarkable career and of one of the most interesting periods in the Nation's Capital.

By Raymond V. Sykes.

During the last two weeks attention has turned sharply from the European situation to domestic business conditions as more likely being of greater significance in determining securities values over the long run. The recovery in foreign exchanges and French and Belgian bonds has been reassuring, to be sure, in that the decline is now definitely stamped as being the result of speculative selling and not genuine liquidation from impressive quarters, but it is more incidental than fundamental.

Industrial Prosperity Returning.

The advance in securities, so far, appears to be entirely justified, and may be considered as a direct reflection of returning prosperity. Annual reports, now coming to light, reveal a recovery in earning power well distributed over every class of industry. Weekly reports of car loadings are establishing new maximums, which means that the volume of business is not only holding up, but expanding. Steel ingot production in January was at annual rate of about 43,500,000 tons, the highest since March, 1920, and a gain of more than double the rate of January, 1921. Much of the new steel is for building purposes, and so long as new building keeps up real progress is being made.

A check to recovery that may be feared is price inflation. The advance that has taken place already is moderate when the drastic deflation of 1920 is recalled, but a further increase of 25 per cent, which is predicted by many economists, would certainly form the basis for some misgivings as to the ultimate result.

The Federal Reserve statements do not yet reflect any change for the worse in credit conditions, which means that inflation has not gone to such lengths as to exceed the resources of member banks. The Federal Reserve System statements, however, reflect a condition of about three months behind actual conditions and are not of great value alone as a barometer. Despite the great increase in general business during the last year, rediscounts are about $250,000,000 lighter.

Persistent Strength in Bonds.

One of the most encouraging signs of the time is the action of the bond market. So far this has taken no cognizance of rising prices or given any indication that inflation of unfavorable proportions is probable. Because bonds bear a fixed rate of interest the yield can be increased as an offset to high commodity prices, only by a decline in market value. The return from a $100 bond bearing 5% and selling at par would be $5. This amount to-day might represent the value of a pair of gloves, for example. If the cost of the gloves advanced to $5.50 a pair, the bond would have to sell at about 94% in order that a $100 investment would still yield the equivalent of the value of the gloves. This is exactly what happens, but of course bond values are modified by credit conditions, margin of safety, marketability, and so forth. A general rule, however, would be to the effect that bond values move conversely to commodity prices, and if commodity prices advance more rapidly than the buying power of the general public a reaction in the bond market is inevitable.

The persistent strength in bond prices to date goes a considerable ways in discounting the fear that inflation is already on its way. This does not mean that inflation will not come, however. Bondholders should keep a careful watch on price indices and the bond market itself, and if bond values begin to soften while commodities are advancing, it would be highly advisable to switch into short-term issues. From general indications, more than specific ones, prices for first-grade investment bonds are very close to their top levels. A comparatively short period of time will indicate whether values will hold in their present territory or begin a protracted movement downward.

Stocks Make a New High.

Averages for representative stocks have recently made a new high for the present year and are less than three points below the peak reached in October, 1922. The technical position, especially of high-priced industrials, has become weakened by the rapid advance, and speculators should be prepared for a profit-taking reaction, at least.

The railroads, as has been pointed out here many times, offer very much safer speculation because of their comparatively low levels, high equities, and indicated earning power.

The Rails and Copper.

The dividend paying rails which have been recommended from time to time stand unchanged. The low priced, non-dividend paying common stocks recommended have had a considerable upturn, but it would be advisable to hold these through a profit-taking reaction, if one comes, rather than to take the risk of selling with the idea of buying back at lower levels and possibly missing a large part of the upward movement.

The coppers also hold long pull speculative possibilities, the outstanding purchase being the Anaconda Convertible Debenture 7s. 1938, recommended here a few weeks ago. These bonds show a high yield and possess all the speculative possibilities of a copper stock because of their conversion privilege.

WASHINGTON BARRACKS.

Washington Barracks, D.C., Feb. 10, 1923.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Stewart entertained at four tables of bridge followed by a tea. Meses. McGlachlin, Page and Stewart assisted. Miss Audrie Wilcox of New York, a house guest of Miss Julia, Kitts, has left for her home.

Col. and Mrs. F. W. Coleman were dinner hosts at the club of the Army War College. Maj. and Mrs. George M. Newell and Misses Newell had a dinner party at the club a few evenings ago.

Dr. George Boas of Johns Hopkins and Mrs. Boas, who have been house guests of Col. and Mrs. Charles E. Kilbourne, have returned to their home at Baltimore.

Miss Alice Offley Davis, house guest of Col. and Mrs. Lawrence B. Simonds, reached the post from Baltimore on Sunday.

Smith, Lockhart & Co. Trustee Rounding Assets

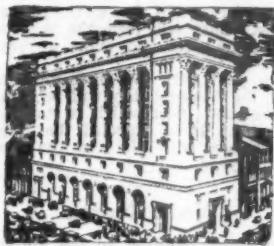

The trustee looking into the Smith, Lockhart & Co. matters is now engaged in collecting all the possible assets of the company, including claims which the company had against its creditors, and it is quite difficult to determine, because of the many transactions of the company, just when they will be able to collect all the assets belonging to the company. When this is done and the assets are converted into money a dividend will then be paid each claimant.

Messrs. Ansell & Bailey, the attorneys representing the claimants, state that they have so far filed ninety-six claims. There are outstanding nineteen claims of officers whose names were sent in by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL or who have corresponded with Messrs. Ansell & Bailey direct who have not yet forwarded to the latter their proof of claim. Some of these, however, are officers who are now in foreign waters, and no doubt this has occasioned their delay in forwarding the claims. Delinquent officers are requested to return to Messrs. Ansell & Bailey, Albee Building, Washington, D.C., the proofs of claim which they had prepared and forwarded to them.

H. E. Humphreys, representing Maxwell of London, maker of boots, spurs and whips, is visiting the United States. Appointments may be made with him as follows: New York, Commodore Hotel, up to Feb. 24; Philadelphia, Bellevue-Stratford, Feb. 26 to March 3; Wilmington, Hotel Dupont, March 5; Baltimore, Stafford Hotel, March 6 to 7; Washington, New Willard, March 8 to 14; Camden and Aiken, March 15 to 20; Pittsburgh, William Penn Hotel, March 21 to 23; Cleveland, Statler Hotel, March 24 to 28; San Francisco, Palace Hotel, April 2 to April 14, including Burlingame, San Mateo, Del Monte and Santa Barbara.

Questions and Answers

Questions having to do with military or naval matters will be answered in this department as soon as possible after their receipt, or, lacking space, by mail, provided a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent. Communications must in all cases be signed, giving the correct name and address of the inquirer.

X. Y. Z. asks: Where may I obtain the proper literature anent the various schools (as at Fort Monroe, etc.) open to the enlisted force of the U.S. Army?

Answer: Apply through the channel.

S. T. W.—After all demotions the number on the promotion list of the junior captain is 6,378. There is no basis for making an accurate estimate, but the War Department hopes to see the demoted captains come back at the rate of about 250 a year. This is just a rough estimate, of course. There are only 142 demoted captains above you, and according to this you should attain your captaincy in eight or nine months, or at the latest a year.

ORDNANCE.—There are no vacancies in the Ordnance Department for either master or staff sergeants. It is not believed that an examination will be held for some time, as the large eligible list which already exists will take care of vacancies for a long period of time.

SUBSCRIBER asks: On page 363, your issue of Dec. 9, 1922, under the heading of Decisions of the Comptroller General, you say that a student of the Officers' Training Camp was entitled to $100 per month during such training. I attended the Officers' Training School at Schofield Barracks, H.T., Jan. 5 to April 19, 1918. I drew the pay of my grade as an enlisted man. (1) Am I entitled to the difference between that pay and $100 authorized? (2) Please make reference to the act or other authority for this payment of $100 per month.

Answer: (1) Yes, you are entitled to this difference between your pay as an enlisted man and the $100 per month authorized. (2) March 12, 1920 (26 Comp. 745).

A. E. D.—The next post-graduate class in aeronautical engineering is to be started about July 1. Make out your application and send it through official channels.

F. W. B. asks: (1) In the potential strength of the Army, Dec. 27, you give majors, 1,725, and as the authorized strength, 1,575. There have been some of us here who are unable to understand this, as it was our understanding that no officers would be held in a grade for absorption. Does the above difference of 1,525 mean that 150 majors will have to be absorbed before promotion will again start from captain to major? (2) Again, have you any idea or can you offer any estimate with the facts you have at your disposal of the rate of promotion, that is the number of files we might expect during the course of the year? There are a number of us who were demoted from major to captain, to whom these things are of extreme interest and we would appreciate an answer to the above questions.

Answer: (1) This was a typographical error; both figures in this case should be 1,725. (2) For your own information, the total number of majors reduced to captain was 274, and according to War Department figures it is expected that all of these officers will regain their majorities in approximately two years. You are just below the middle of this list and it will probably take you between a year and a year and a half for you to attain your majority.

A. B. asks: What action, if any, has been taken in regards to pay for the old post non-commissioned staff? Has the Comptroller General rendered any decision yet?

Answer: The Comptroller stands by his former decision as to rates of pay for retired list as published in this paper July 22, 1922.

QUALIFICATION asks: (1) Can men who were not on qualified list on June 30, 1922, be announced as expert gunners?

(2) If rated on June 30, 1922, and rating expires normally Oct. 30, 1922, a soldier qualifies Oct. 31, 1922, will he draw pay for rated position or for expert gunner?

(3) Sergeant A was carried on qualified list for rated position on June 30, 1922. He was originally placed on qualified list Oct. 30, 1921. Must he requalify on or before Oct. 30, 1922, to continue as expert gunner? (4) Sergeant B was never carried on qualified list. He took examination for gun commander, was placed on qualified list and announced expert gunner for one year from Sept. 1, 1922. Is he entitled to expert gunner pay or first class gunner pay?

(5) If Sergeant A did not requalify until Nov. 8, 1922, had additional compensation would he be entitled to, expert gunner or first class gunner?

(6) Can an enlisted man be announced a first class gunner by passing the prescribed examination for a rated position?

Answers: (1) No.

(2) The rates applicable in this case are dependent in part on whether or not the soldier concerned is being paid under the saving clause. If paid under the saving clause he will be paid from July 1 to Oct. 30 for his rated position. If not paid under the saving clause he will be paid as first class gunner from July 1 to Aug. 22 (see 6 below), and as expert gunner from Aug. 23 (date of Cir. 183) to Oct. 30. If announced as first class gunner for qualification of Oct. 31 he will thereafter be entitled to pay as first class gunner. He will not be entitled to pay for either the rated position or for expert gunner by reason of the qualification of Oct. 31.

(3) The rates applicable for Sergeant A from July 1 to Oct. 30 are those to those stated in above for the period July 1 to Oct. 30. If Sergeant A fails to requalify on or before Oct. 20 he loses, on that date, all rights to additional pay whether being paid under the saving clause or under the new law.

(4) Sergeant B acquires no rights for pay as expert gunner for a qualification attained on or after July 1, 1922. He may be paid as first class gunner if his qualification as such is announced in orders (see 6 below).

(5) If Sergeant A did not requalify until Nov. 8 he would be, thereafter, entitled to pay as first class gunner (see 6 below), if qualification as such is announced in orders.

(6) From the context of the seventh subparagraph 1848, A.R. 1913, it is apparent that the examination required for the rated positions includes the requirements for the qualification of first class gunner, and the statements in the foregoing answers (1 to 5), to the effect that first class gunner's pay accrues to a man who qualifies for a rated position, are predicated on the assumption that such is a correct statement of the facts. Assuming that such set of facts exists, this question should be answered in the affirmative.

DECISIONS OF THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL.

An officer ordered to Boston for temporary duty traveled from Camp Lewis, Wash., paying railroad and Pullman expenses for his wife to Boston to amount of $124.52. From temporary duty he was ordered to Camp Meade for station and duty. He paid transportation expenses for his wife from Boston to Camp Meade and claimed reimbursement in a sum equal to what it would have cost the United States to have furnished her with transportation from Camp Lewis direct to Camp Meade. The Comptroller General calls attention to the fact that transportation for dependents is not payable for temporary change of station, and says: "When he was ordered from Boston to Camp Meade for permanent duty his wife was at Boston, and transportation from thence to Camp Meade only was authorized, if the distance to new station did not exceed that from old to new station. Claimant is entitled to $20.98, amount it would have cost the United States to have furnished transportation from Boston to Camp Meade."

No Restoration to Grade on Special Assignment.

A sergeant of Co. B, 20th Inf., was discharged July 6, 1917, to accept a commission, was honorably discharged from commission June 30, 1919, and at his own request was re-enlisted for General Service, Inf., for special assignment in the recruiting service. His re-enlistment was in grade of private 1st class, and by successive promotions he reached grade of sergeant Sept. 30, 1920. Difference in pay between grades of sergeant and grades actually held by him during intervening period is claimed. The Comptroller rules that as claimant did not request restoration to his old grade in a line regiment, but enlistment for special service, he is not entitled to the difference in pay claimed.

Bonus on Dependency Discharge.

A soldier who had served during the emergency, Sept. 18, 1917, to April 2, 1919, and re-enlisted for three years Jan. 25, 1921, was discharged Sept. 25, 1922, by reason of dependent relatives. His claim for the enlistment allowance on discharge was disallowed. The Comptroller General rules that as records on file at the War Department and a personal investigation by an agent of the War Department show that the discharge was a bona fide discharge by reason of dependent relatives, and not one for his own convenience, he is entitled to the allowance of $90.

OPINIONS OF JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL, U.S.N.

The question was presented as to the legality of the restoration of numbers lost by sentence of a general court-martial in the case of an officer who has since been promoted to a higher grade than that in which serving when the penalty was imposed. It appears that since the date of his trial he has been promoted three times. Hold: The sentence having been fully executed, there is no action which the President can now take whereby the numbers lost may be legally restored.

Discharges: Reissuance Of.

The service record of an enlisted man contains the following notation: "Navy Department, Bureau of Navigation, Sept. 11, 1920. The discharge, dated Nov. 20, 1919, is hereby changed from 'Good' to 'Honorable,' in accordance with the act of Congress approved July 11, 1919. (Signed) — Lt. Cdr. U.S.N."

The question was presented whether this entry changing the character of his discharge from "Good" to "Honorable" satisfies the provision of the act of July 11, 1919, which requires that he shall receive an honorable discharge. Hold: The man in question is entitled to receive a certificate of honorable discharge in lieu of the certificate of good discharge, and the entry made of his service record changing his discharge from "Good" to "Honorable" does not satisfy the requirements of the statute.

Reduction in Rating as Punishment.

"A" upon re-enlistment was issued an appointment as yeoman second class, the rating he had held in a prior enlistment. After his transfer to the receiving ship he was demoted by the commanding officer to yeoman third class, his service record showing that he was demoted for "deliberate neglect." Held: That such demotion was in conflict with Article 24 of the Articles for the Government of the Navy, that it was without legal authority and that the record should be corrected and "A" should be treated as though such attempted reduction of his rating had not occurred.

A danger signal — tender and bleeding gums

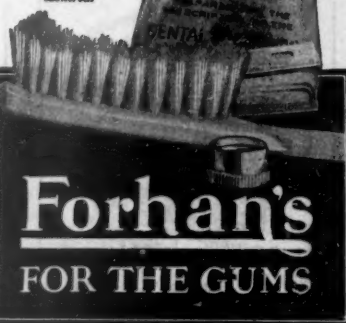

HEALTHY teeth cannot live in diseased tissue. Gums tainted with Pyorrhea are dangerously diseased. For not only are the teeth affected, but Pyorrhea germs seep into the body, lower its vitality and cause many ills.

Pyorrhea begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the poisonous germs that breed in pockets about them.

Four out of five people over forty have this disease. But you need not have it. Visit your dentist often for teeth and gum inspection. And keep Pyorrhea away by using Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy, the teeth white and clean. If you have tender or bleeding gums, start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in U.S. and Canada.

THIS actually happened and is well worth telling. The drug clerk was just about to close up. It was getting late. The last policeman to rub his nose against the plate glass window, was far down the avenue when the clerk switched off the electric lights and turned the lock. Then it all happened.

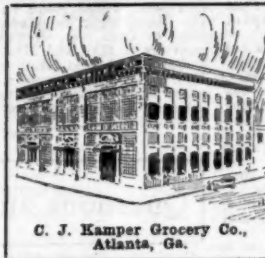

A man rushed up to the door. "Say, man, I want a box of Beecham's Pills. Simply must have them!" he exclaimed. "Store's closed for the day," remarked the clerk as he pocketed the key. "Like thunder it is!" shouted the late comer, "I've got to have a box of Beecham's Pills tonight." The altercation grew heated. There was an exchange of blows.

Then the clerk took off his broken glasses, unlocked the door and handed out a 50 cent box of Beecham's Pills.

Can you beat it?

Beecham's Pills are so pleasantly effective in making sick stomachs well, sluggish livers active, and lazy bowels to function as they should, that Beecham's steadfast friends and supporters sometimes overflow with strenuous enthusiasm.

GROCERY STORES

Groceries—a common name for the Necessaries of Life—that great variety of clean, wholesome foodstuffs, imported or domestic tid-bits, and sometimes little delicacies, that add to the name of the home, or to the matron who serves them.

To-day, the Modern Wife is supremely confident, because she knows she can always rely on these Quality foodstuffs for her regular meals, or for special parties, teas or club meetings.

And Quality costs no more to buy—provided you make all your purchases from Dependable Firms who really believe in Quality—both of Goods Sold and of Service Rendered.

The Imitator or Substitutor charges MORE for Quality—because he is NOT USED TO DEALING REGULARLY IN IT! The Rank and File of Dependable Firms, such as are listed hereon, stand firmly behind years of honest endeavor and reputation in their business, backed up by one word—QUALITY—both of goods and of service!
